Shawna,
Howz it going? This is hard to write, I have to say alot in a little space. Well, here goes. This year started out sood and when I met you it got better. I know as well as you do that our relationship had some problems, I guess that's the way it was to be, I really wish I didn't have to move, but I can't stop my parents. I really gonna miss you I probably be in shock for weeks cuz I can't see you. Well, next year I'll be back and I coming to get you! Just in case I don't already know; I LOVE YOU! forever - and that stands
xoxox,
Jeffrey
P.S. I'll be bad to correct those "isms" & kisses so you be the be wacky.

Shawna

Well, Well, Well.

How are ya doing? I think your parents suck the big WANG. I hope your dad reads this. Well just stay sweet and good luck with Modeling.

This Book's For You

We, the Valhalla Staff of Nineteen Eighty-five, have chosen a very select group to whom we have dedicated this Twentieth Anniversary Edition. This elite collection of individuals represents the illustration of our theme—everyone goes through life, but some choose to celebrate it.

This year's Valhalla is dedicated to all students, staff, and parents who have given so much to our school—its memories, its name, and its spirit— which have made our lives at Lynbrook something worth celebrating. We proudly invite you with a First Class Invitation. Of course, it is a rather informal affair.

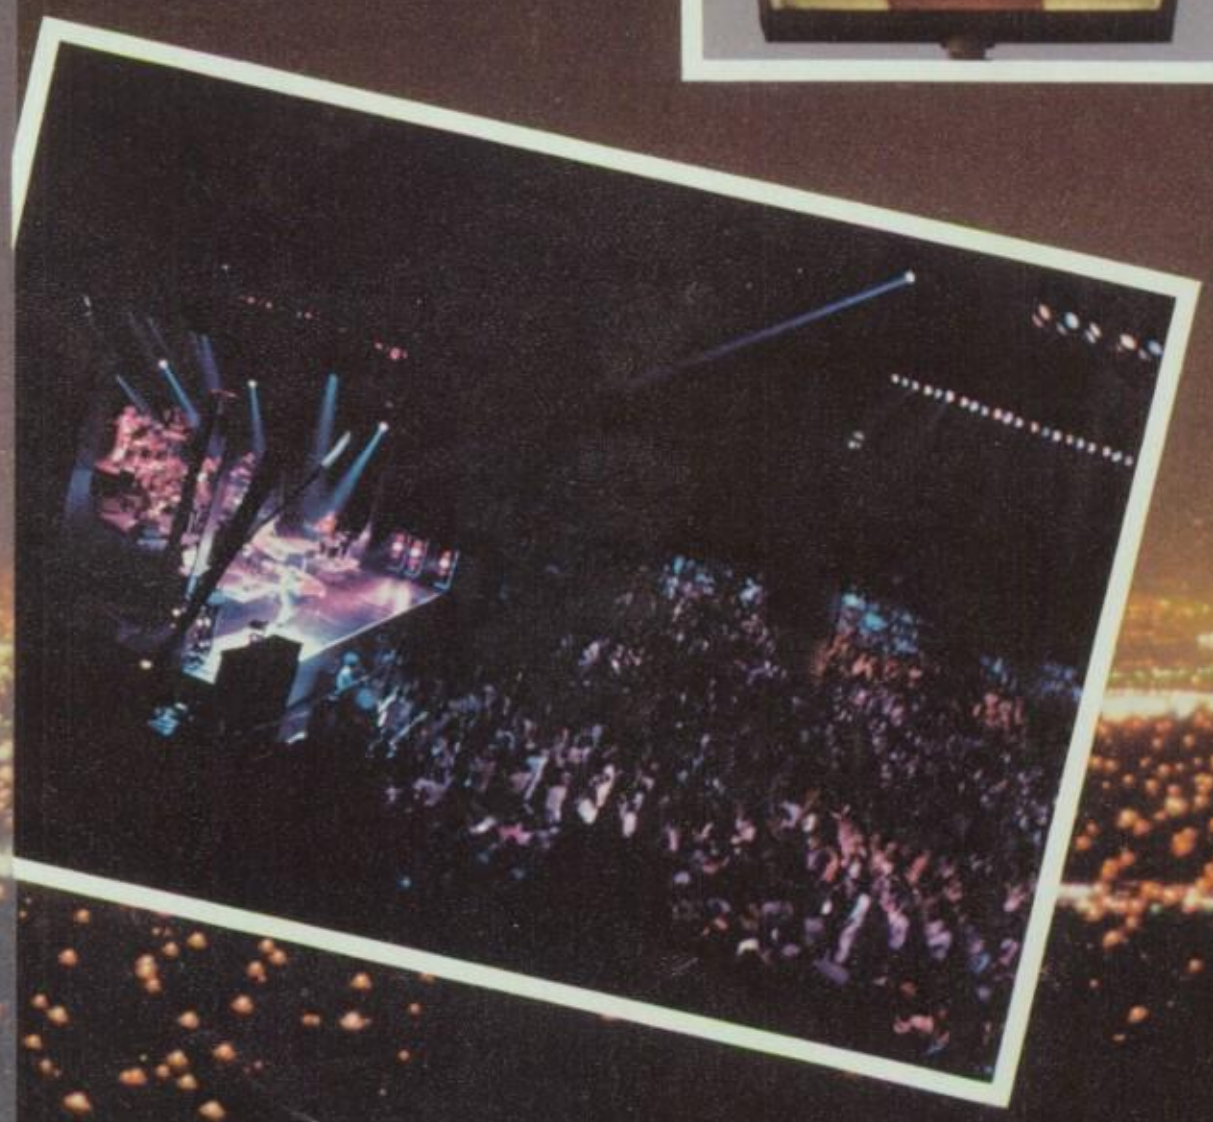
On The Dark Side



We've all had those bad school weeks, filled with one "off-day" to the next. When Friday came, we looked back on the week and all the trials and troubles involved. All that frustration had built up, and we had to let it go. With the coming of night, you decide that it's time to break loose.

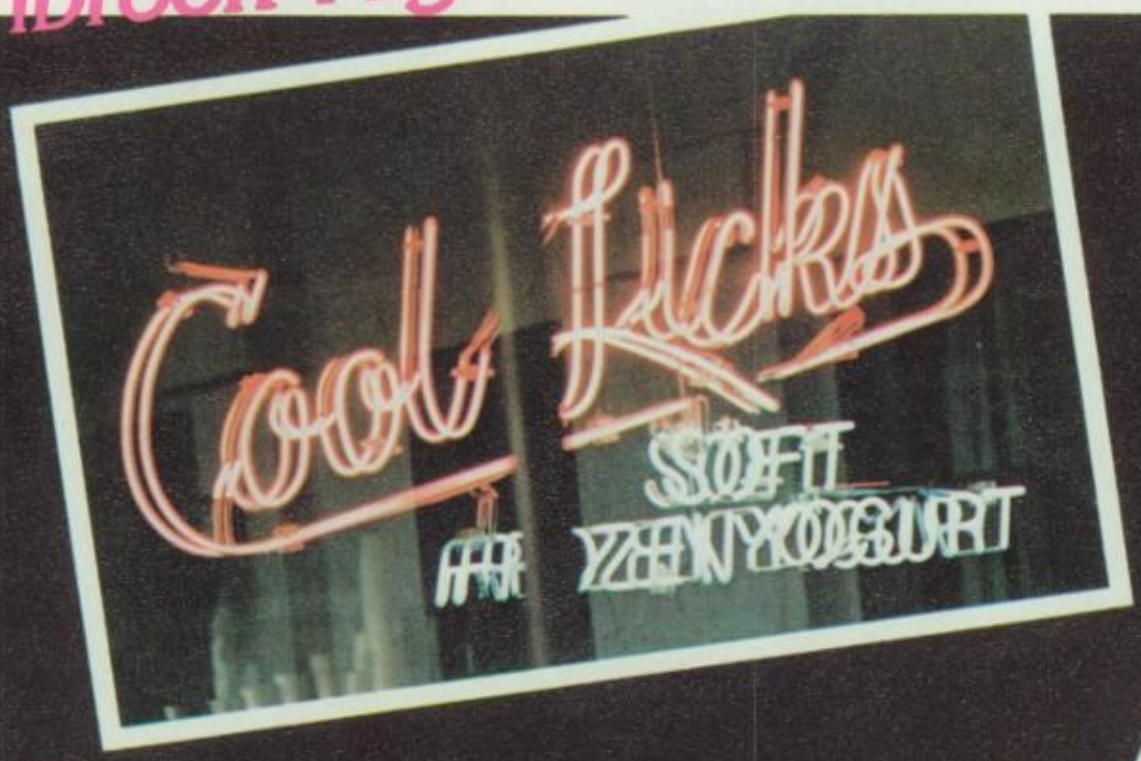
Whether it turned out good or bad, the Vikes appreciated their liberty in the night. If not locked inside the invisible cage of Physics or AP English homework, and not glued to the tube to fret over who's killing who in Dallas, we were out releasing our accumulated inhibitions upon the night. Wherever our time, money, and transportation (Whose car tonight?) took us, we willingly went (Something different tonight, OK?). Usually, this entailed water-balloon runs, late-night flicks, drive-thru adventures, more parties, pizza, Cool Licks, El Paseo, Chili's, 7-Eleven, and possibly the old, reliable "road trip" (where the destination, distance, purpose, and time of arrival were all totally unknown).

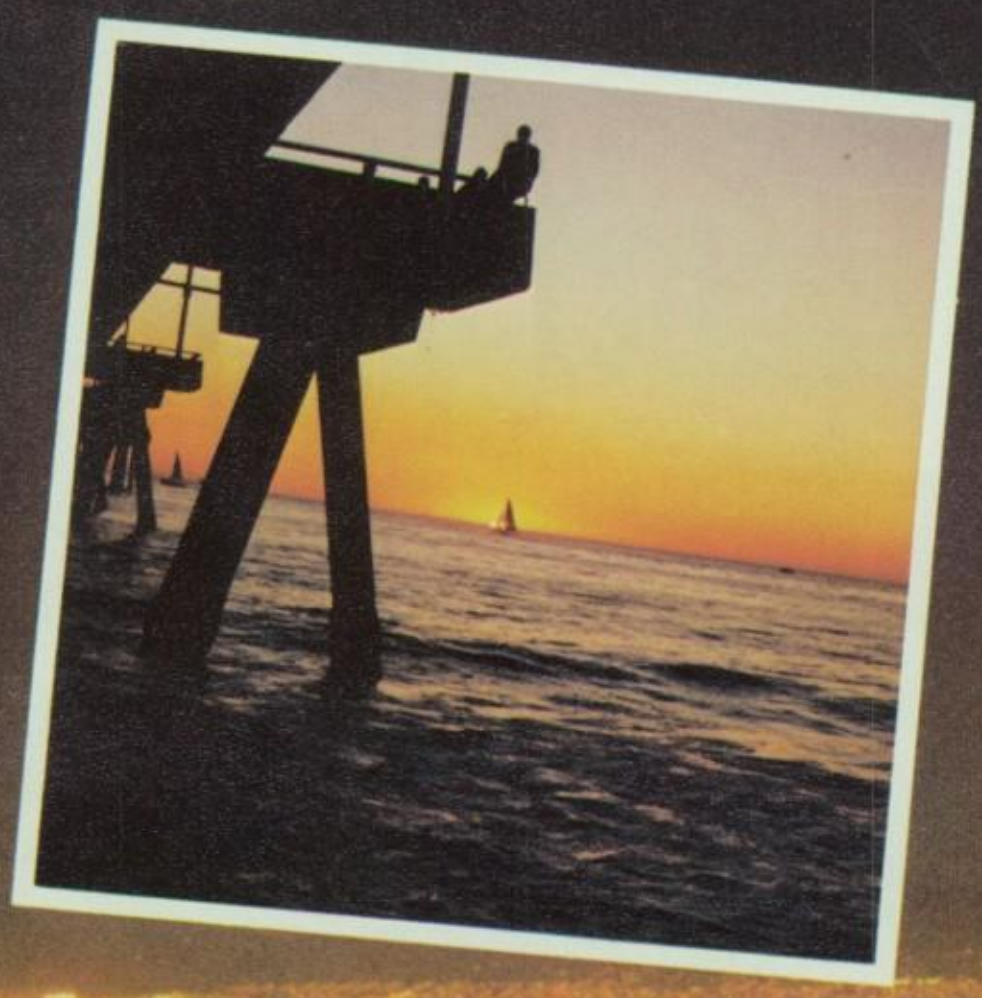
Although against our wishes, due to school the next day or a shortage of money, gas, or whatever, the nightlife and all its experiences came to a close. However, the final adventure was yet to come: explaining to mom and dad why you were out until 2:30 a.m. Some would lie (Gee, Mom . . . you see, we got a flat and had to push the car 12 miles in the rain and . . .) and some would bravely tell the truth (Cruise chicks and suck face, Ma . . . it's the name of the game . . .).

Eventually, we all survived the night, and upon turning in, we retired it to our memories. Possibly, we'd even note it as a prologue to the next night out.

So . . . who's bringing the Hibachi?

Lynbrook Night Life





Pole Position

As you pull up to the red light, you notice the guy next to you and his car. He goes to LHS too, so you rev the engine to gain his attention. He responds in a show of camaraderie by doing the same. With self-assurance, he points to the stretch of Prospect in front of you. Your reaction: turn up the stereo and wait for green. Cross traffic slows, then stops. The two expectant cars lurch and engage in a heated match.

We all love driving. Hopefully, we have our own cars, or else we have to take the infamous "Parent's" car. Oh, the fright and embarrassment in hauling around in a huge '72 station wagon (the "Brady Mobile") or in a white and red Dodge Dart (with push buttons). But, after all the fear is forgotten, we find that the giant fuel-sucking monster underneath that hood could come in handy at those stoplight challenges.

Looking out onto the Lynbrook parking lot, we see it all. Cars ranging from Mercedes to Fords. Trucks to vans. Days of hard work. Stickers. Personalized plates. Pride in our cars. Pride in ourselves.

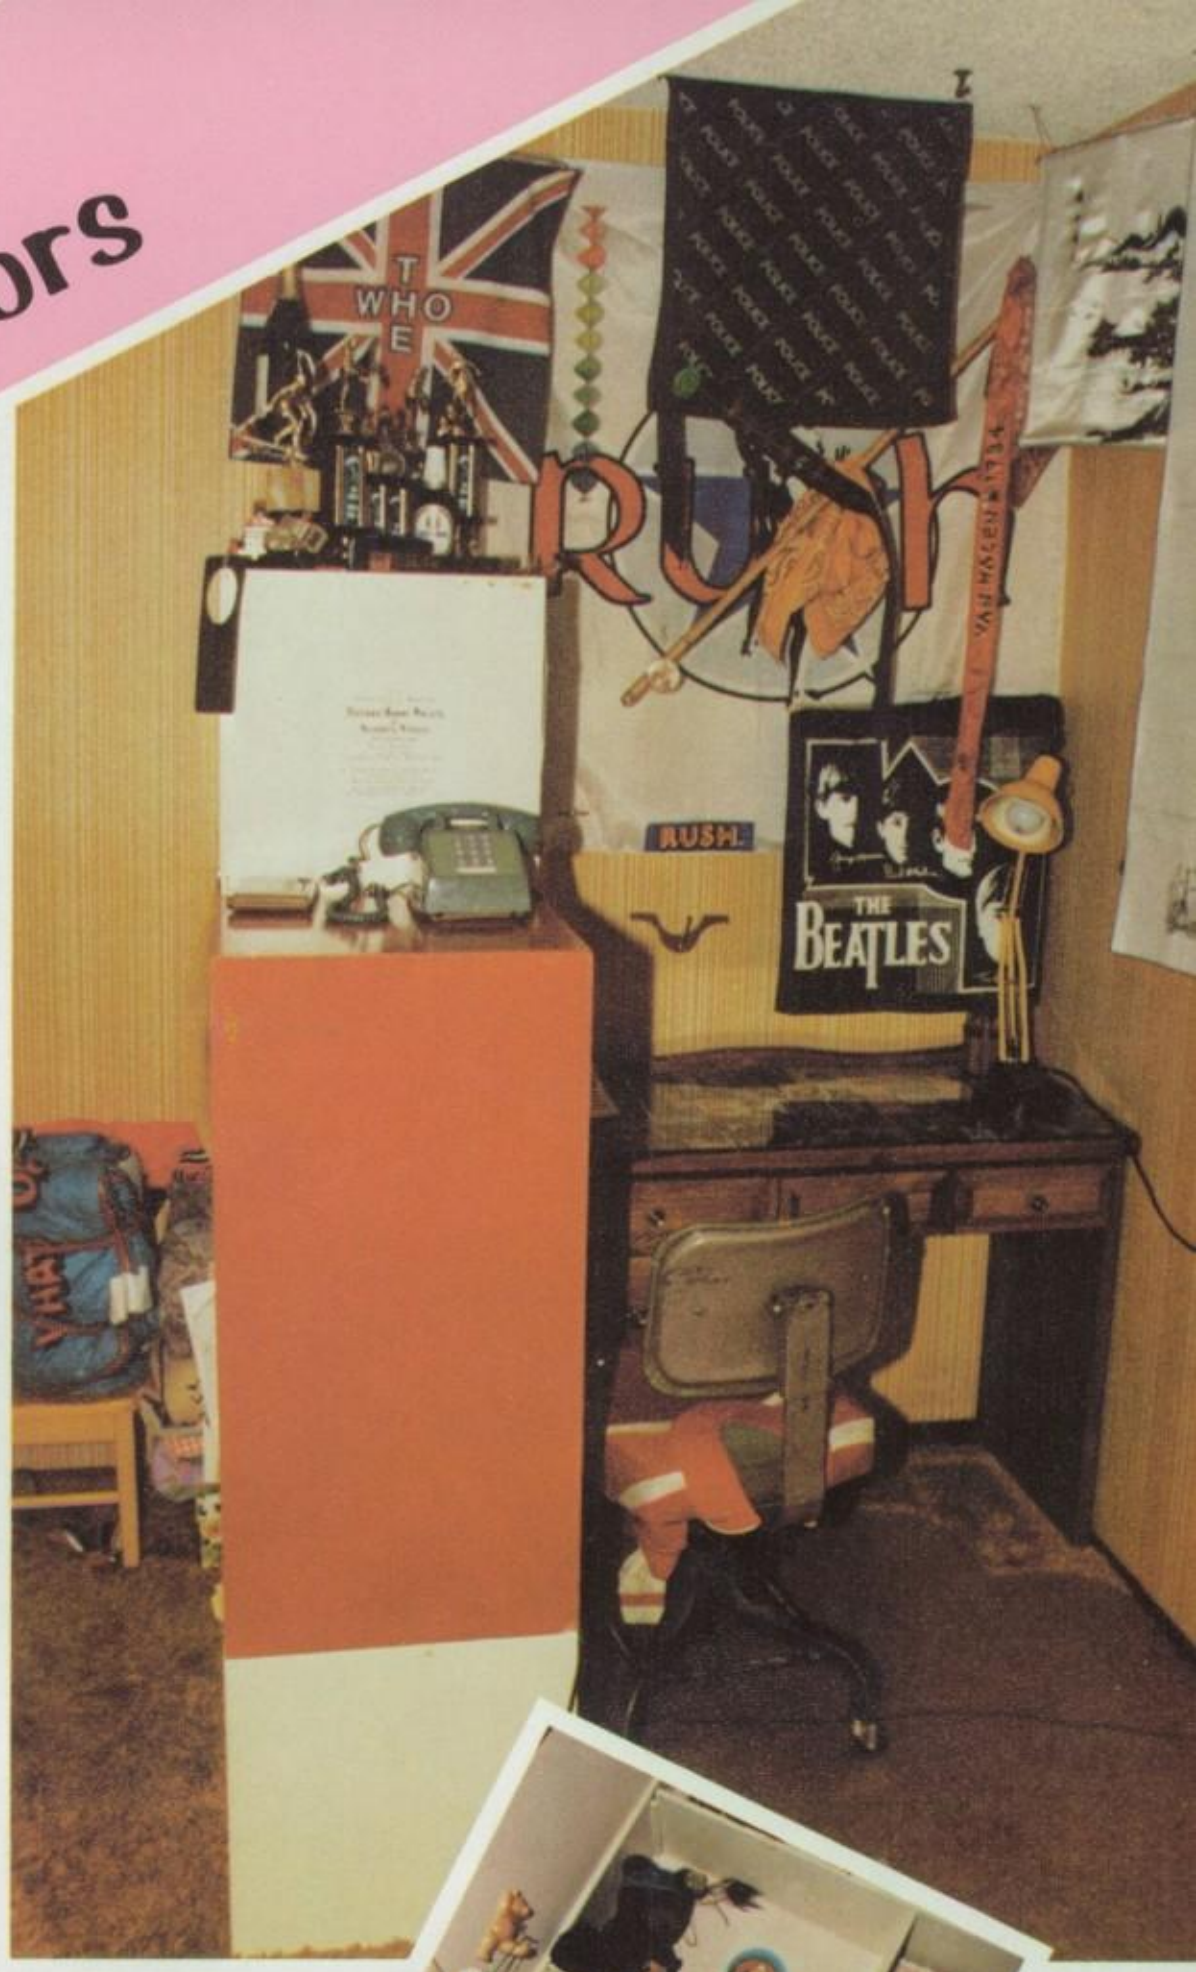
Behind Closed Doors



We hear what they say, and we see what they do, but do we really know who they are? What actually goes on behind the closed doors of our friends and classmates at Lynbrook High?

The door to the chamber is shut. Is it an entrance to a spectacular world of beauty, sports, music, or teenage idols, or a trap door; one that leads to a gigantic mess? Sometimes it is a bit of both! In some Vikes' quarters, one can almost float in the heavenly surroundings while in others, a visitor must jump, hop, and skip over millions of obstacles. In either case, it is our home and our world. The place where we sleep, listen to music, dress, and throw our clothes on the floor.

So, if ever that mysterious door opens, take the opportunity to step inside. Does the "macho" football player have Billy Sims and Walter Payton, or the Smurfs and Gumby and Pokey on his wall? And what lies beneath that U2 album, is that the "Bee Gees' Greatest Hits" we see?

Come on in and explore a surprising new world. Discover what truly lies BEHIND CLOSED DOORS . . .

1. Willy Radecki's room displays his unique taste in music. 2. Memorabilia collected over the years reflects Lyn Thayer's fast-paced life. 3. This pink and frilly room demonstrates the stereotypical old-fashioned girl's room. 4. Faces we'd all like to fall asleep with! 5. And what teen-ager could do without a stereo?

Shawn,
You dum. I can't believe we have gotten through the worst part. You are such a love, you really mean a-lot to me. And I mean a-lot we have been through so much together. Monterey WAS so killer. We have to do it AGAIN soon, but we have to meet some great looking guys. We are Actually gonna be so promoes. Sounds pretty weird hun. Well, just promise me one thing, when you become rich and famous, remember me. I love you soo much. So you have to remember me.

Love,
Michelle
XOXOXO

Munch a Bunch for Lunch

Finally! Fourth period is over. 12:15 has arrived. As the bell makes its most exciting ring of the day, hundreds of Lynbrook students make their way to lunch. The moment we've all been waiting for. Well, at least since breakfast (or should we say since no breakfast). The time to satisfy those tastebuds and to stop the stomachs from growling.

The mad rush has begun. Lynbrook's parking lot has suddenly turned into a major thoroughfare. Off to Togo's, Burger King, McDonald's, Jack-in-the-Box, and of course, for those infamous Winchell's and Bravo runs, everyone goes. Forty minutes to get there, make it through the long lines of hungry highschoolers, eat it down and get back to campus for the next bell. What an adventure!

For those without wheels, however, the cafeteria and lunch time does just fine. From hamburgers and corn-dogs to by-the-ounce deli sandwiches and new-chewy chocolate chip cookies, the hearty appetites are easily taken care of.

So, whether we filled up with a Big Mac, Togo's 26, a Bravo bean burrito without/with extra, a Snickers, a corn-dog, or our own mom-made bag lunch, we are all now prepared to face one or two more class periods on a full stomach!

Hey! Look Me Over

Step through the gates of Lynbrook High and enter a world of high fashion. Just watch the magazine pages unfold as the attitude of '84-'85, "Hey, Look Me Over," comes to life. Lynbrook· in its glory, style, variety, and individuality like never before. Suddenly everyone is posing. Both guys and girls are beneath the spotlight no matter what they wear. New or old, bright or pale, Vikes are dressed as if to be the centerfold for their own magazine; the one that most fits their style.

New wave, surf, "vogue," florescent, preppy, sporty, or casual, it's all here and it's all a part of Lynbrook's dare to be different. From faded (and bleached!) 501's to chartreuse socks, and upright hair to almost no hair at all, the old cliche applies, "to each his own." Yet, like all years gone by, '84-'85 has produced its trends as well.

Those who are turning the last few fashion pages at Lynbrook won't soon forget the guys in their fancy sweaters and Oxford shirts and outrageous shoes. And, those who still have years to go at Lynbrook will carry on that flair for originality as the trendsetters of the future. But most importantly, the pages of the year will close and the enthusiasm will stay the same. Remember the thought of '84-85',

"Hey, look me over."

1. Jason Mocanu wearing a more fashionable expression. 2. Gerry Hanna, alias Molly Mod, strikes a pose. 3. Macys had a fantastic sale and some Lynbrook gals stepped out in style.

And For Your Listening Pleasure . . .

Who is it that said music is the universal language? Well, for most Lynbrook students it is the ONLY language. Step into the student parking lot and receive an earful of everything from Van Halen to Lionel Richie.

Vikes regard music not only as entertainment but as a source of inspiration and revival. Seven hours of homework can take its toll on anyone, but the "Boss" can remedy that.

Perhaps the sounds from the rock of the 80's is more your style. In that case we have Tears for Fears, Howard Jones, Oingo Boingo, and the Psychedelic Furs for your listening pleasure.

Flip the dial and yet another type of music is heard. This time it's directed to the ears of our more conservative listeners. KWSS airs Prince, The Cars, Huey Lewis and the News, Madonna, and Billy Idol to set the mood for any occasion.

There's a type of music for everyone to listen to. As long as it's you, it's Lynbrook!!

Catch that Viking Spirit

It was the end of an exciting, tiring, and competitive week, but it was also the beginning of a new kind of spirit and competition. The first rally of the year couldn't have come at a more appropriate time. Homecoming was upon us and Spirit Week was coming to a close, but students were not too exhausted to show their class spirit.

While classes prepared to compete for the "Most Spirited Class" banner, several moms were preparing their puckers to give an anonymous kiss to their football players. From the "super" and "sensuous" kissing moms to the traditional game between princess and escort teams (pie anyone?), the rally was a huge success.

The class competition was very tough as loud chants of "85", "86", "87", and "88" were heard and the classes showed their unity from the sophomore wave to the seniors with Burger King hats and leis. Everyone held their breath as the winners of the rally and Spirit Week decorations were announced. The seniors released theirs with a cheer. They had won both for the second year in a row.

A Party With Spirit

"Good god . . . who are you?" seemed to be the typical quote during Spirit Week, sometimes replaced by, "WHAT are you??" Hopefully, most of the dressed conformed to the theme of each day. The Frosh, celebrating the 20's made it hard to believe that they were actually Spirit Week "rookies." Those of us unable to dress for 20's day hit the road (the Yellow Brick one) in the sophomore class' version of The Wizard of Oz. Having too much fun portraying grownups in kiddie land, the Juniors introduced us to playing kids in kiddie land. Everyone's fondest Childhood Memories were shown as the final day of the underclass' section of Spirit Week. We accomplished three totally different time spans in just three days (the 20's, the 40's, and the early 70's): quite believable in a school with such overflowing pride.

Taking The Step Beyond

The class of '85 reaches its goal once again, the desire to top off last year's theme: dreams, either fantasies or nightmares, became more than just a fantasy. Before everyone's eyes, from sunset to sunrise, it became more that just reality; the seniors had done it! Lynbrook's rally court had finally been transformed into ONE STEP BEYOND REALITY.

Reality. A city with ghettos and graffitti, a school, and even a car accident. Each represents a fragment of our real world, yet, on that day in October, simply stepping across a bridge led the seniors to that world beyond; almost paradise; the place where seniors could say, "The Class of '85 is stranded on an island, please DO NOT RESCUE!"

Yes, there we had it. The result of days, one night in particular, of grueling hours of work. An island set upon hundreds of sandbags (Oh, those sandbags!) a huge and, yes, sturdy enough wood platform, all upon a lake in the famous flooded rally court (finally). To the beat of loud music, beneath the light of the moon, (and, of course, a couple of flourescent lights, too) hundreds of dedicated seniors brought what was simply a figment of the imagination to life.

And the morning came at last. Seniors, dressed colorfully with leis, holding coconuts and pineapples, presented to Lynbrook their very own step beyond.

1. The great oasis 2. Cruising highway '85 3. A water fight between friends is a great way to cool off, as shown by Seniors Vicky Stratigopoulos and Mary-Beth Hurd. 4. Seniors Lyn Thayer and Scott Hublou flash a quick smile as the long night of work comes to an end. 5. A morning in paradise 6. With shaking tambourines and thumping bongos, Geoff Goldsberry asks for requests. 7. School is a definite Reality.

Worth Coming Home for . . .

"It was a night One Step Beyond 'excellence'!" beamed Anne Erikson, Homecoming princess.

The Homecoming dance proved to be one of the most radical of the year, due to an estimated attendance of 900-1000 students. Among these were last year's grads, who were seen rocking out with their old friends at the Homecoming.

Because the casual dress of the students clashed with the Homecoming court's tuxes and gowns, the Homecoming Queen tried to conform to the more casual "Flashdance" look—Sorry, Vicky, the tape didn't hold . . .

After an electric dance filled with the sounds of the band, Rhythym Core, the Vikes took home memories that they wouldn't forget of a night 'beyond excellence'.

One Step Beyond . . .

And now the moment we've all been waiting for. . . Homecoming '85 is here at last.

A large and excited audience was there awaiting a glamourous homecoming court. The old cliche "better late than never" surely applied that night. At last, the princesses and escorts, Freshman Anna Simila and Senior Todd Martin, Sophomore Valerie Carlson and Senior Tim Gomersall, Junior Stacy O'Connell and Senior Garrett Mathieu, and of course, returning Queen Kristin O'Leske with her escort Geoff Goldsberry made their grand appearance.

In limosines and vintage Thunderbirds, the court, including the senior princesses and their escorts, made it just in time to circle the field. They dazzled the audience with an elegant entrance to "The Impossible Dream" making their way to the platform. There the announcement was made announcing the 1984-85 Homecoming Queen, Vicky Stratigopoulos!

The fun-filled night closed with balloons in flight and with that white rabbit(Oh Geoff, what a magician!) The glamorous show by the court created another beautiful memory for Lynbrook in 1984.

One Night of Mistletoe Magic

Mistletoe Magic was the theme for this year's Winter Formal, and for many couples it was a memorable evening. Strayheart provided the music as all the couples danced and swayed to the beat· once they all got there, of course! Where? The Sunnyvale Hilton. This fol· lowed a fun and rather romantic dinner at a very exclusive restaurant. (Sebas· tian's, Shadowbrook, Anthony's Pier 9, Villa Felice, and the ever popular cafe at Woolworth's.) The friendly atmosphere (and very tiny dance floor) only added to the delightful evening. After the night had ended and the magic faded, all Vikes went home to a well-deserved two·week vacation with memories to last a life· time.

Who's Got A Lo

The Cast

of Livin' to Do?

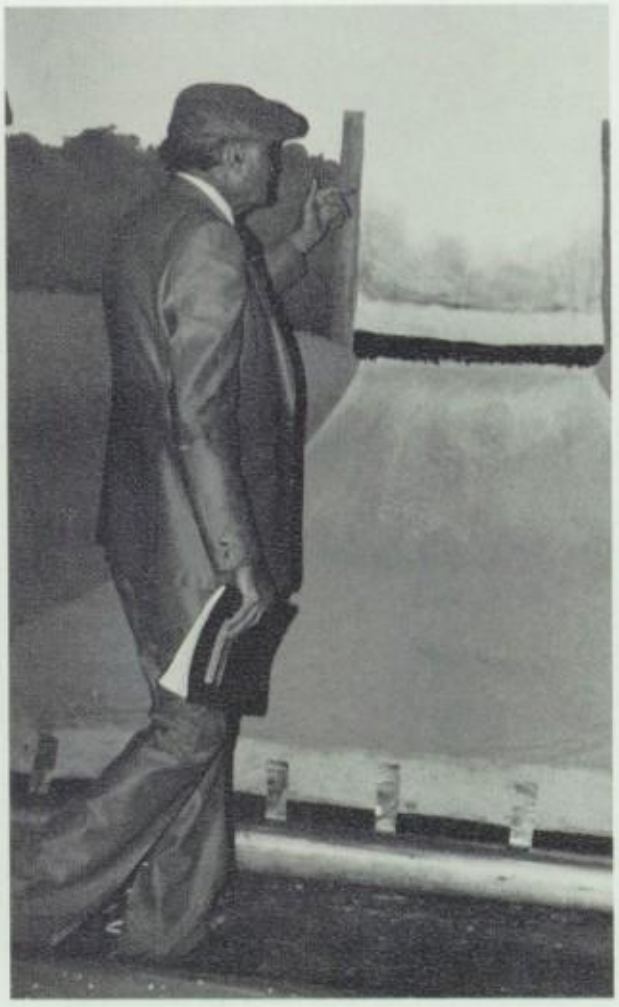
"You Ought to be Sincere" when selecting "One Boy", one girl, or even lots of guys and gals to make up the energetic cast of Lynbrook's musical. So, that's exactly how it was done! After a week of "grueling" auditions, many Vikes learned that they would have the chance to "go showbiz" at Lynbook. Then finally after weeks and weeks of after school rehearsals, the cast was more than ready for Lynbrook to say "hello" to "Bye Bye Birdie"! It's showtime folks! The curtains opened and the curtains closed. But, even when it was all over, the cast couldn't say it did not have a great time every step of the way. Three super directors plus unforgettable characters like Nudie Andy and Nate (and many more!), kept spirits up and laughter roaring. With such energy and enthusiasm, no one could forget - "We've Got a Lot of Livin' to Do."



The Night o

I've got you, babe!

As announcements rang, "Okay girls, it's time to ask that special guy," 168 girls began to prepare for Lynbrook's 1985 Sadie Hawkins dance. The theme of famous couples led to many original costumes from the chicken and the egg to the award-winning Sonny and Cher. After "marriage" and pictures, couples made their way through the tunnel of love for a lot of dancing to the good music of "Rhythm Core". With the combination of fantastic decorations, a great band, and lots of happy Mickeys and Minnies running around, the night was a guaranteed success.

Are we having fun yet?

It's Sonny and Cher!

Purse String Pulls

For those of us who decided to get a summer job last year, thank God we did! Being a Senior turned out to cost a heck of a lot! Starting way back in September, we took a huge chunk out of our pay checks to run out to the shopping mall so we could start our last year at Lynbrook in style. But it only got steadily worse from there. Who would have guessed that all those Arthur Mintz pictures would amount to over $200??? And then came the Christmas Ball. Being our Senior year, we wanted to go in style—meaning the best in formal wear, bubbly champagne, and that extravagant $240 limo! By now, we should all have been wiped out, but it goes on yet. Hope you'd all turned in your applications by now. $40 here, $25 there—my goodness this is adding up quickly. Put in your Hawaii deposits, too, guys. And since we're all driving by now, we're pumping gas into those tanks like there's no tomorrow, cruising around from place to place. And that costs! Yea, we learned it hurts the ol' bankbook to survive through this year, huh? And we haven't even had our Senior Ball yet! Let's just hope this biggie doesn't do us all in, and we might make it yet!!!

The Climb to the Top

As Freshmen we traveled across our butcher papered "road to success", wearing togas to accompany our unoriginal theme and obvious lack of funds. We lived up to the name of "Freshman" with our spiritless rallies and "I love Lynbrook" pins. We progressed by leaps and bounds, however, to our three-ring circus. Although we had advanced from our "Freshman" stage, we still lacked class unity.

By the time we reached our Junior year, we had enough money, spirit, and organization to set a very high standard for Homecoming. Our dreams and fantasies came true when we beat the Seniors with our wonderful rally court display. (Not to mention our victory at the rally) Our Junior year was a hard act to follow, especially with disorganization. Hectic meetings with the semi-effective blowhorn eventually came together with "One Step Beyond . . . ". This proved to be the ultimate show of creativity, spirit, and unity!!! Our tropical island in the sun was the greatest success as exhausted Seniors floated on rafts sipping tropical drinks. Boy, have we come a long way!!!

The Year of the Defense

Dave Latter holds for Dave Gillen.

This year the Varsity Football team showed signs of great potential but never quite realized it, due to injuries and who knows what else. Although the defense set a new school record for the fewest points allowed in a season (69 in 9 games), the team still finished just 2-3 in league and 5-4 overall. The Vikes were ranked in the top ten in the CCS after beating Salinas the week before league but went on to lose 3 straight in league. It wasn't a total loss. There were still a lot of good times despite the falterings on Friday nights. (Mark and Kyle's dancing exhibitions in the team room before practice or, "Everybody pile on Lade on 1!").

The season went by fast, the two-a-days in August and the final game at Fremont seemed to be only days apart (but what days they were!) Practices were offense, offense, offense. (Oh, what we would have given for an offense.) But the neglected defense still excelled. All in all the season was fun, (Only in America, boys!) if not tremendously successful in the win-loss column.

Pride in Action

Football (foot'bol) n.1. a game played with a ball on a rectangular, 100-yard-long field with goal lines and posts at either end. This is the common definition of football, but this year was far from common. With Alex Lowe's kicking brilliance and the constantly changing first string quarterback position, the J.V. Viking's put their best cleat forward and ended the season 3 and 6. Our future football stars uttered encouraging words such as "Get it right meathead!!" to keep the team's moral up, and coach Teri Daniels (Verbugge) enjoyed the front row immensely (Good seats, huh guys?). It was a tough season for the J.V.ers, but Otis and the ex-marine always made sure the team was giving it their best shot!! Win or lose, our youngest Vikings always did it with pride.

Placing 1st, 2nd, and 3rd respectively in DAL finals, the Frosh/Soph Boys, Girls, and Varsity Boys Cross Country teams showed their strength this year by "running as a team in every meet," according to Coach Verne Thornburg. Beginning with running in the hills, the team even managed to produce a runner (Tran), who actually succeeded in finding his paper cup. The team also found that taking one wrong turn really messed up everything, for the last runners never got the coveted "goodies." Faring the worst, emotionally, were the sophomores, who were Coach Thornburg's private scapegoats. However, the team still functioned well together after such divisions by helping the cheerleaders at football games!

Setting Up in '84

Optimally, ideally, and theoretically, our volleyball team should have taken C.C.S. After all, our work-outs were efficient, always on time, and five hours long! We practiced and took notes diligently (you almost have his smile to a T, Judy Lu) and never did we talk back (never!) Under our leader, Coach Paul, we somehow transformed into a team. He laid down the rules, all 12 pages of them, and we followed. Lez-a, Peena, and Commie, not only are dancing, singing, and unladylike behavior forbidden (rule 33), shooting hoops (i.e. making use of constructive time) is an absolute no no! Ikebe, Knockers and Kristine those earrings have got to go, do you want to blind one of your teammates? Brooke, Wauna, and Happening One's, Pepper, Planned Plays, and red-heads are illegal! And finally, Chubby, Dr. Michelle, and Neats, how many times must you be told?! When the whistle blows, grab your balls!!!!!

Fun? Could this describe workouts in 60 degree temperatures at 6AM? It must be after the Lynbrook Water Polo Team finished 8th in California. The dream team from last year left this year's team in ruins with only two returning starters, Perry Wu and Pete Kleis. Hampered by injuries (coach, where's the tape), and inabilities to find their way to morning workout (Where's Paul? . . . He said he had a dentist appointment.) foreshadowed a team that would sink, but signs of sleep in 1st period told people that the players were working hard. With a league record of 6-1 and a DAL Championship under their belt, the thought of winning CCS is within a —TWISTER and a TORN SUIT of Lynbrook's grasp.

Swim 'till You Drop!

Boasting a high team spirit, the girl's swim teams of '84-'85 put forward a lot of effort, not only to win but to have fun . . . especially in those dragging practice sessions. Sensing that the laps would never stop, the team kept itself going by keeping their attitudes up and by giving it their all. Although the team had a low image of itself, the season did turn out some exceptional performances. Karen Christiansen attained a lifetime best in the 100 breast in CCS, and Nicole Halfenger *placed 3rd in the 50 freestyle and in the 100 butterfly. You want us to play them? *But they have three racquets each!! As soon as the confusion was straightened out to something Samo could try to work with, we tried to get down to business and the really important stuff: How long is practice, practice on Fridays, poses for team pictures, who got to rally with the much-in-demand Mark, and which side of the reversible skirt we were going to wear?! After all the formalities were taken care of, we got down to some serious tennis which fell under the scrutiny of a, uh, shall we say "bad press" (no, we weren't bad, just the press). Come on girls!! "Donkey" hote Rides Again

What has 26 legs and can bench press 2450Lbs. You won't be able to find the answer in any trivia game or book. You can only find the answer from November to February and between the hours of 2 and 5 p.m. in the wrestling room. If you haven't guessed by now, the answer is the Lynbrook Varsity Wrestling Team. In many ways, a wrestler is like the man in the old Spanish fable 'Donkey' ote. A wrestler goes after his opponent, no matter how big or small, with only one thing on his mind, "I'm going to stick this guy". The Wrestling Team was led by two of the best coaches in the league, Head Coach Gus Talbot and Asst. Coach Mike Gaynor. The whole team would also like to extend their eternal gratitude to two dedicated ladies, Lynn Okamoto and Tula Tsobanakis, who kept the team running.

In Jr. High terms, 'THE HUNTER SPECIAL'! 3. While trying to catch his breath, senior Ossie Cooney tries to put in the Vine. Talbot "I told you no vines Ossie." 5. The remarkable sophomore Steve Guerra, executes the nearly impossible move of a standing Fireman's Carry. How were you able to get that move Steve? 6. Head Coach Gus Talbot and Asst. Coach Mike (The Cop) Gaynor look on at a most exciting match. Can't you tell?! 8. Senior Scott Benson doing a Suff (Souffle), but isn't that an illegal move, and what school is the opponent from, he seems familiar. 9. The Varsity Team just can't sit down.

Shoot For Two

Varsity boys basketball was off to a fast start with a 5-0 non-league record. Varsity placed second in the Westmont tournament, behind top league rival Monta Vista. In the first league game they squeaked by Saratoga. They continued to put up a good fight against Monta Vista and Cupertino. This year's team, dominated by seniors, is coached by Doug Oliver for the second year. Led by seniors John Leathers, Todd Wilson, and Mike Stolarik the team enjoyed a wonderful season.

The JV squad led by coach Mark Muller had a enjoyable but not entirely successful season. Muller's familiar cry of "suck it up" was heard over and over during practice. Liston kept up a steady monologue to help everyone get through the seemingly endless practices.

Destined for Success!

Why do girl basketball players ask so many questions and try to analyze everything? Who is watching what in the car? Who is in the balcony? Why is the coach in such a bad mood? (She just quit smoking or . . .) But at least they win. They win because they take the awesome wagon to Burger King on game days. They win because they run a million double-liners on intense practice days. Or, do they win because they make up rad songs on the way to games (Hi ho and Chaka Cun.)? Really, the few, the proud, the seniors: Cheeter, Kami, and Belle, are trying to set an example for this group of p. poor (green s.) defenders and what an example that is?!? Oh well. They were still awesome (ranked in CCS, no less) and there is always next year for our joking juniors: Nanny, Salty, Shellers, Jen, Berney, and Ikebe. So take it to 'em Vikes! An "Off the Wall

Shawn Blakeman plays "Superman" with Geoff Goldsberry assistant

At midway through the DAL season, Lynbrook's Boys Varsity soccer team seemed bound for a second appearance in CCS playoffs in as many years with an 8-0-2 record. The famous "Hard Wood Defense", consisting of Beat Street Kelley, Tim Kraus, Mike Biren, Hoocher Jones and specially talented goalkeeper Woodie Leonard, held some of CCS's finest offenders (What? Me? Held? Dougie?) to an average of less than one goal a game. Meanwhile, the squad's own offense probed and penetrated the mouth of every opposing team's goal (What? Me? Probed? Penetrated?). Dave Pugh and Ev Gantley provided uplifting support on the sidelines while basketball sensation Harold Unsinger recorded the games for posterity. The team would only like to bronze one small moment that in some way made the season a little bit sweeter: down 2-0, playing on short time, a certain little tike on the opposing team asks the referee to count off 10 yards for a free kick. The man in black counts 'em off . . . 8 . . . 9 . . . 10, and a wall of 6 Lynbrook defenders step up a yard or two. (What? Him? 50 cents each?). The J.V. team lead by coach Bill Gaskins had a promising pre-season, but got off to a shaky start for DAL's.

Lazy . . . But Lucky

Well, once again, we got off to a slow start. At the beginning, we were ranked first in DAL's, but when the season started, we couldn't live up to what we were supposed to be. Guess it was that same attitude problem we resort back to every season. Yes, we're quite a unique team. We win when we're supposed to lose and lose when we're supposed to win. But, it's always a lot of fun. (Thanks Heather for your house! And thanks Tina for trying to tame the impossible!) Eventually our luck changed, and we started to win a few. Now it is possible that we will come around and capture the DAL title. It we still have eleven players around by them, CCS might be ours. The chance could even be increased if we practice a little!

Lynn Stepovich

The 1985 Badminton team got started in early March under the fine leadership of coaches Dave Pugh and Jeff Fishback. Senior, Harold Unsinger, led the Varsity singles team while Laurel Lee and Debbie Hong led the girls' singles team. While the birdies flew at practice, there was plenty of fun and hard work too. It seemed as if the team couldn't have had more fun, but when it really counted everyone, seemed to pull together and get the job done. All in all the season was well worthwhile for players and fans alike.

Diamonds, a Girl's Best Friend

Back in the limelight and the sunlight, the softball teams returned to begin and carry a great season. Of course it began with practice . . . with Clown playing 2nd base (look at those jumps!) and Hollywood on the mound with those white shades on (be careful not to trip!). The weeks of practice were long and hard, but the girls always looked forward to the weekend(Where's Eddie-boy and his clydes?). Yet practice did pay off, for the team (Today we might have all 12 players) flew into a good starting season record. Their success could also be attributed to Chrissy's and KJ's spirited, enthusiastic, and repetive yells. The '84-'85 team, combining fun, hard work, and good luck, made this sport much more than just a game. Remember, ladies: Come on Vikes! A little bingo now . . . a little bingo!

Straight from the Dugout

It is an American tradition . . . spring rolls around, and the hearts and minds of men turn towards baseball. Bob Grover returned as Varsity coach after spending three years at the University level. With him, Grover brought a philosophy of conditioning, discipline, conditioning, teamwork, and yes, more conditioning. After a few early season victories the team learned that all that hard work actually does pay off. Returning juniors Greg Gibbs and Scott Morehouse, and seniors Dave Latter and Ron Xepoleas provided solid core for the team to build around. Relief ace Dean Viola and sophomore Jeff Hammond provided early season suprises. Other suprises included new dugouts, new bullpens, a restored infield, and new pinstripe uniforms. One of Coach Grover's former players returned to Lynbrook to coach the young and motivated JV team.

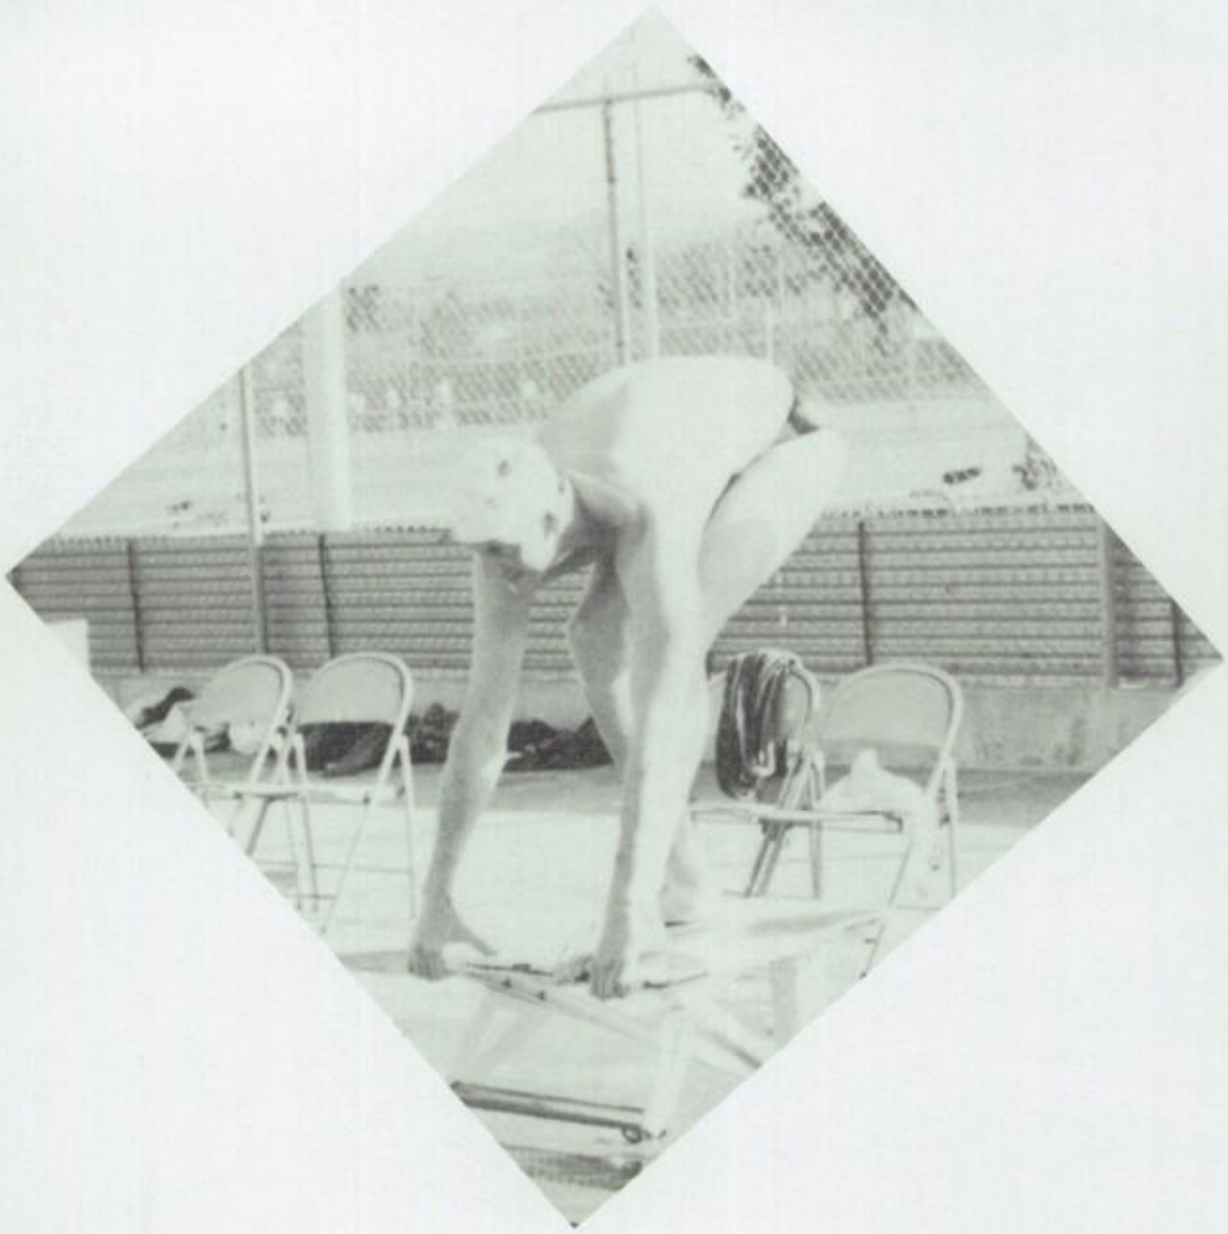
All Work and No Play?



Sunshine, fun in the sun, pool side tanning, girl watching . . . Not the Lynbrook swim team! (Well, maybe just a little girl watching.) Working hard morning and night leaves little time for play, especially with Monta Vista and Saratoga on our "tails." With seniors Andrew Bernyk, Jason Pettit, Pete Kleis, and Perry Wu leading the team, Lynbrook has the potential to win. If the cheers don't get us moving, there's always the thought of butterfly.

We've got Improvements on the courts. The '84-'85 squads got better and better, with their potential, dedication, and capability constantly rising. Talent sprouted and bloomed with number one varsity singles player Kurt Mumma and the doubles team of John Rhee and Rob Brashears. All in all, the entire tennis team-mastering that coveted "mental toughness"-brought forth a tremendous effort in each of its games. The team was also noted for its apparent lack of interest in running (except for Garrett Cullen and Scott Chamberlain) and its slight arguments early in the year. Keep it up, guys! Go Togos!!

Off to a Running Start

This year's track team knew right away that the 1985 season was bound to be an adventure. While the team began wondering. "When do we get our pads?", the ex-football coaches (now track coaches) stepped onto the track ready to whip the Vikes into shape. Starting out the "community" warm-ups and stretches by Coach "no one listens to me" Pimentel, the team prepared for numerous meets. The next step was to get there. Off they hopped into the (now convertible) "New Yorker" with poles and all ready to face the competition. Keeping a positive outlook, the runners attitudes remained· vaulters may not always go high, distance not always long, or the sprinters fast, but strong efforts build up one very memorable season.

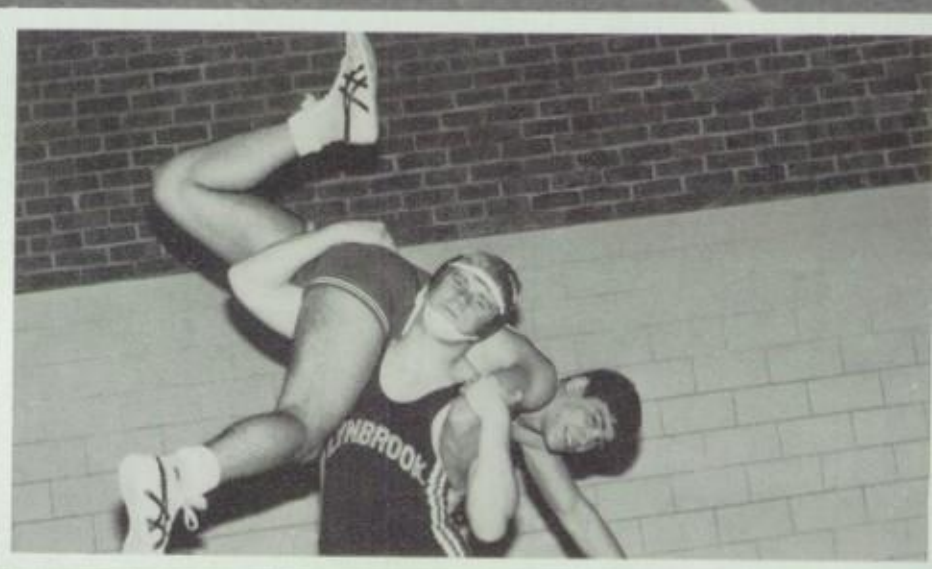
Best of th

Perhaps there is no better feeling than that special thrill of victory— especially during CCS. Through every grueling workout, through every tight game, never losing sight of that dream that beats in every athletes heart: the hope of a CCS victory! And during this 1984-85 school year, so many of Lynbrook's outstanding athletes were able to take part in that high-strung, high-spirited competition better known as CCS. So for those of you who have lived through that very memorable dream, congrats!!!

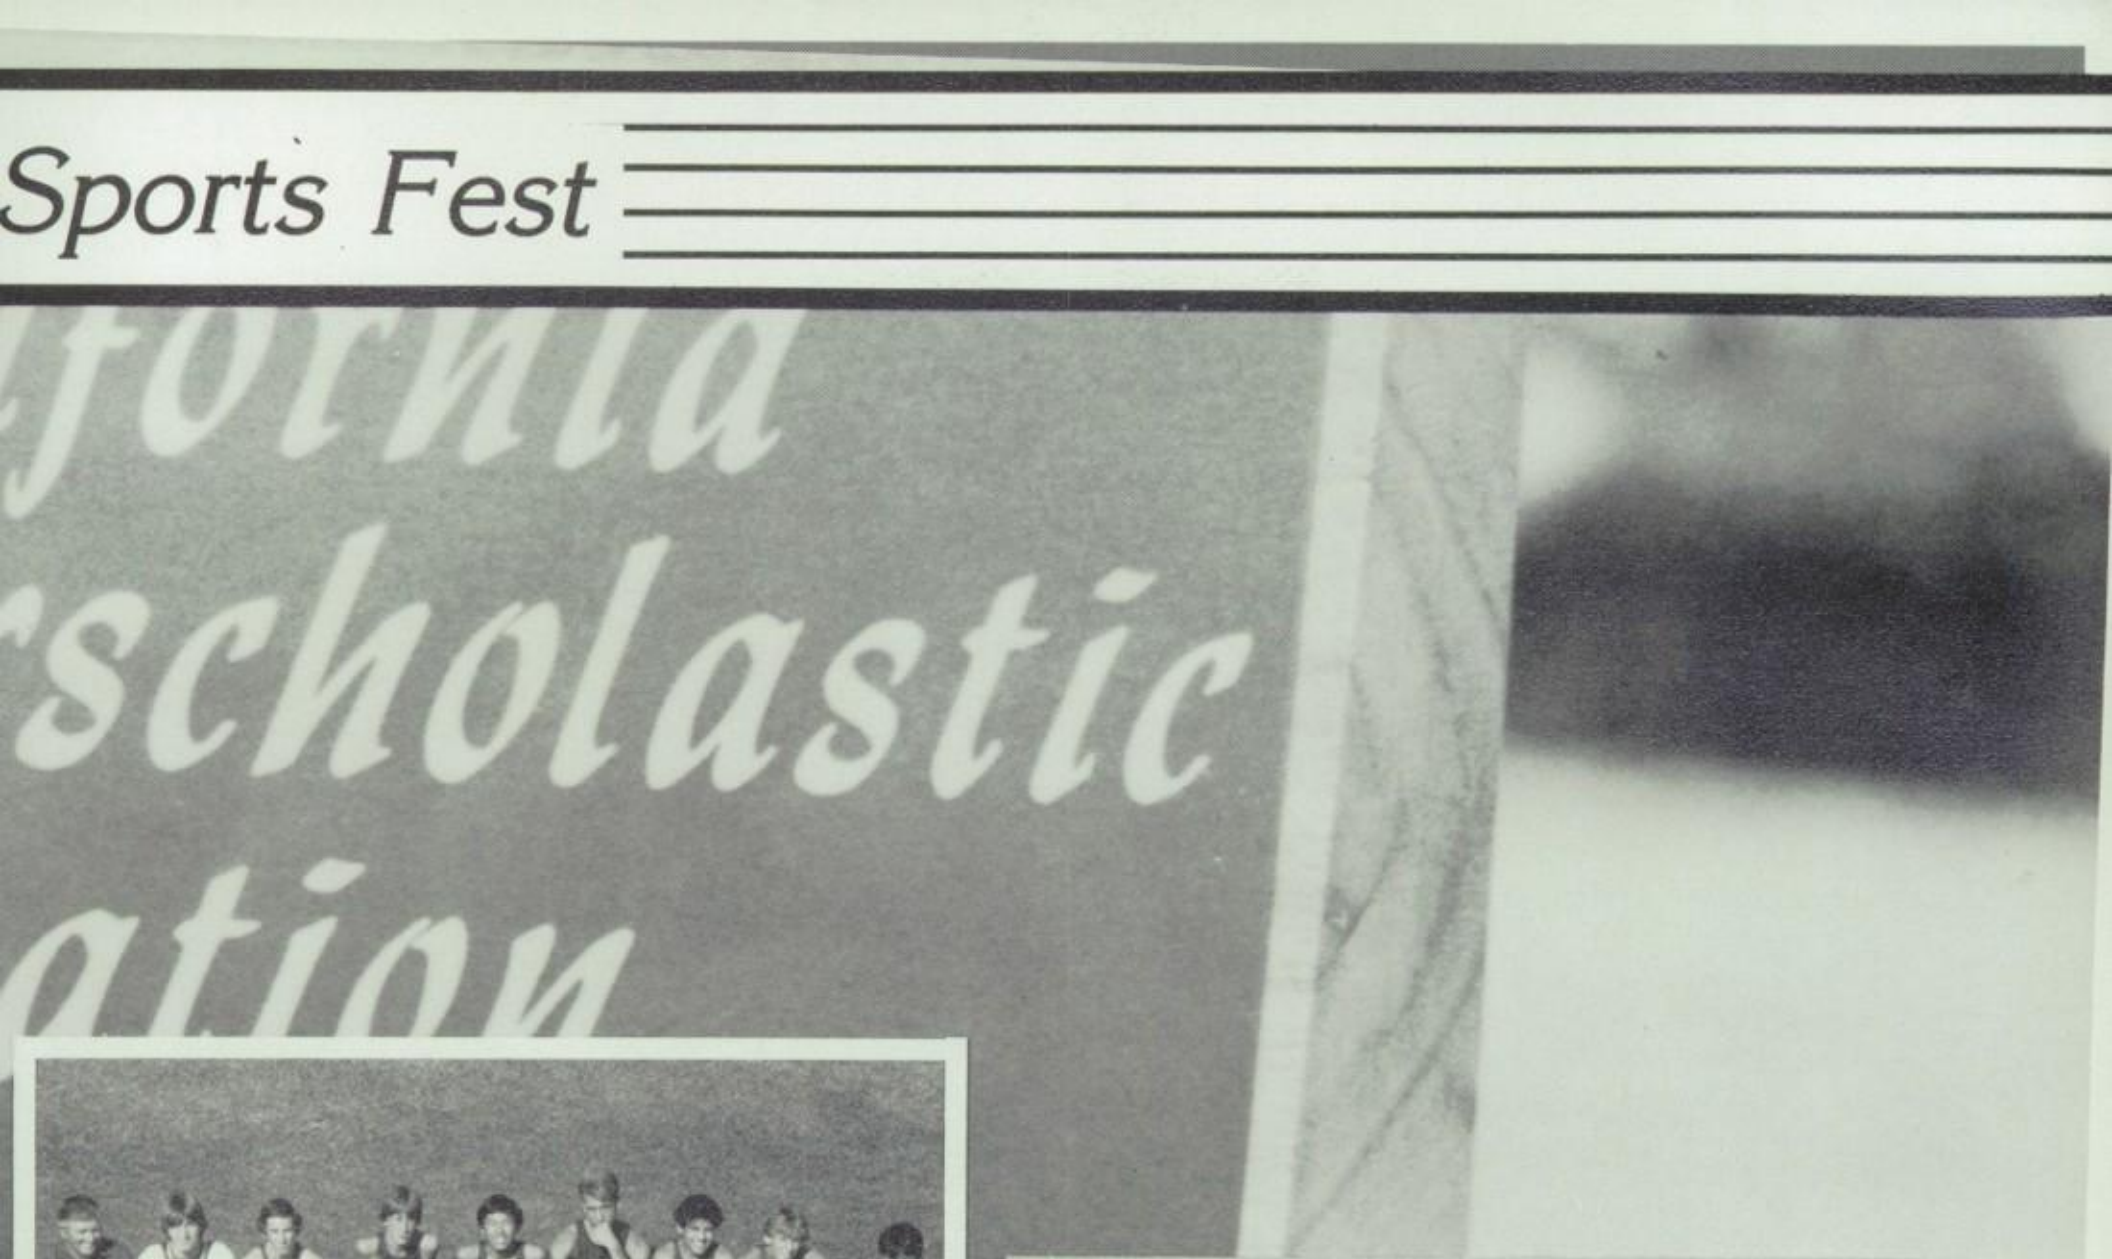
Unfortunately, the spring sports were not well enough into their season to know exactly who those well-deserving CCS competitors would be. However, our predictions are as follows:
Track: T. Kraus, R. Smith, J. Clayton, P. Kolotouros, M. West, and K. Mansfield
Swimming: P. Wu, A. Bernyk, P. Kleis, J. Petit, and P. Fischer

Maybe Lynbrook's most famous sports team is our Field Hockey team. Proud owner of 3 out of 4 CCS titles, LHS made it one more this year without much of a cha!lenge. In the semi-finals against Gilroy, the girls completely dominated the game where they fought for their 2-0 victory. In the finals, they smashed Branham 3-1 to reclaim their old crown.



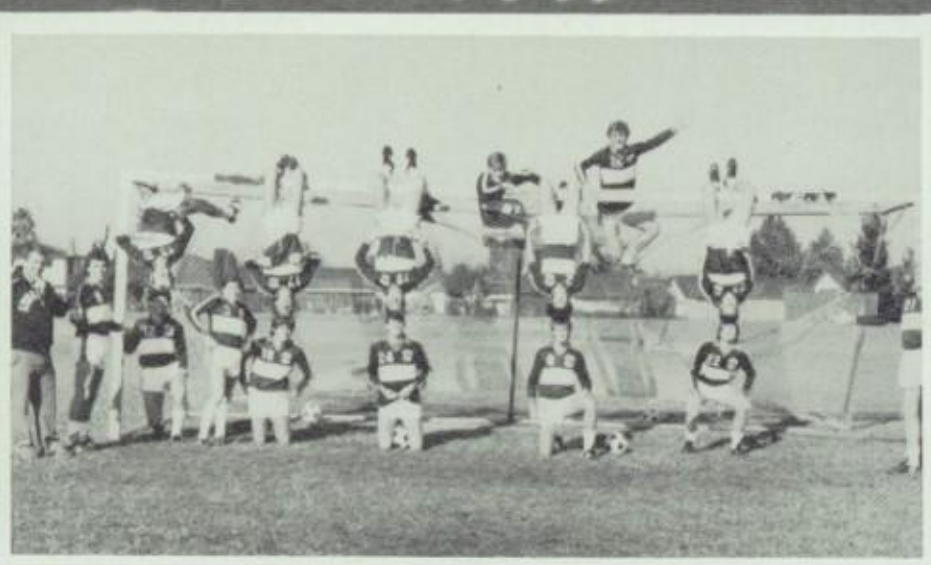
Perhaps one of the finest wrestling teams out of Lynbook placed several talented guys as first place holders in league: S. Benson, M. Quentin, D. Plecq, and S. Royball. A special congratulations should go to Scott Benson who also finished first in CCS and therefore moved on to state competition.

Competing in a very strong DAL bracket, somehow the girls varsity soccer team managed to pull through just in time to claim a first place finish there. In CCS, they flew by Sequoia 4-1, but next they found a challenge as they slipped by Santa Theresa 1-0. Despite their all, the Vikes just missed getting by Mitty in the semi-finals.



Total dedication, endless hills, and constantly putting up with Thornburg. A combination of the above proved to send the whole Varsity Boys Cross Country team to CCS. Also, freshman Michelle Deny represented the girls by running a sensational season.

Led by Perry Wu and Pete Kleis, the LHS Water Polo team gave it their everything and came out with a very impressive third place finish. Up against formidable opposition, the Vikes were defeated by Oak Grove in the first round, but their victory vs. Serra secured their third place position.



The guys soccer team took first place in DAL's this year. This title earned them a bye in the first round. In their highest spirits, the guys beat a fine Gunderson team 2-1 allowing them into the quarter finals. Despite their effort, they went down 2-0 against Branham.

The Way We Work

The t.v. set reminds you to "fill it to the rim" as you pour your seventh cup of "caffeine-full" whatever, and the radio announces "it's 1:30 a.m." with all its might. Your eyes close, open, close, and are forced open again, and the countdown begins. Only six-and-a-half hours until the test!

The sun rises and the alarm rings. You awaken with your face buried in the book you neglected to read until last night. Yet you are ready to face the exam with your 4 hours of sleep behind you and that Viking enthusiasm!

Dancing To The Top

To many, dancing consists of jumping up and down to loud music. But to some, dancing is a fine art, and Senior Kerry Rapp has taken this point of view. During Kerry's 14 years of being a ballerina, starting at the age of 4, she has performed the major roles in such performances as The Nutcracker and Sleeping Beauty. Even though dancing takes up most of her time and total dedication, practicing up to 8 hours a day, she enjoys it very much. In the near future, Kerry hopes to join a professional dance company and make dancing her career. (ABT maybe?!)

Red Light, Green Light

To "make history" in their own lives, the sophomores gave up history for one year to take the prestigious seat behind the wheel. For the lucky ones, the start of the year was also the beginning of a driving career. The remainder had to wait until second semester.

The ordeal began with pamphlets, projects, and tests. Soon they were introduced to simulators and finally the driver training cars. ('You know, the yellow ones that drive the speed limit.) Eventually, they received their permits and were able to cruise with mom and dad. Following months of practice, (oh, I guess I should have stopped at that red light.) each student was ready to make the infamous appointment. With green slip in hand, all headed for the DMV, with visions of their new cars.

Going Down Under

When you think of water sports, swimming, surfing or even water skiing may come to mind. But these are only the surface sports, what about down under, the water that is. Seniors Tim Kraus and Scott Hublou (Shown in the picture) submitted themselves to months of classes and training, just to become certified Scuba Divers. After it was over, and they started diving on their own, they said, "It was well worth all the work. It's a completely different world down there. You start to appreciate life a bit more when you see a fish swim by that is larger than you are." Both encourage people to take classes; it's a true experience.

There are many places along the California coast to scuba dive, and one of the more poular is in the Monterey Bay. These dive sites names range from The Sewer to Lovers Point.

How to Be a Frosh:

Write down schedule on pee-chee

Go with older guys

Hide your school map

Study for the competency test

Never go anywhere by yourself

Eat in the cafeteria

Dream of the rally court at lunch

Wear fluorescent clothes

Overload your schedule

Always refer to yourself as "a 9th grader"

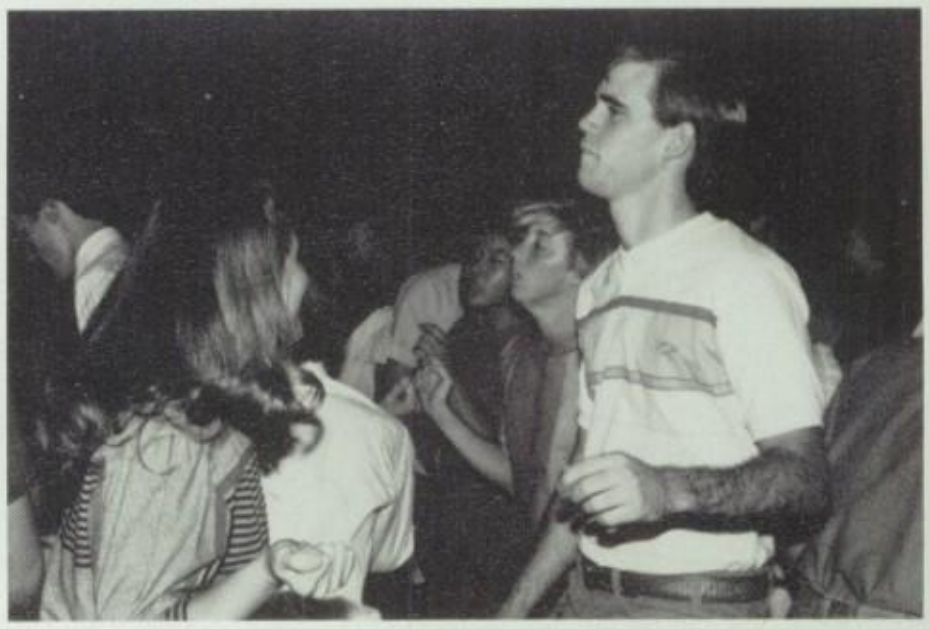
Looking back on the first dance . . .



There they stood, ready to make the grand entrance. Actually dressed in pants and jeans, they entered the gym only to see upper classmen (not many of course, it was 8:00!) dancing. Much to the newcomers' surprise, everyone was dancing and dancing fast! No more records, no more chaperones with imaginary rules ("12 inches apart please") and best of all - bearhugging! What an experience it was. Three hours of freedom and fun. All the freshmen could do at the end was anxiously await the next one!

Daring Deeds To Do In High School

FRESHMAN

·Not bring a map of the school on the first day
·Walk across the rally court by yourself
·Go to a dance, and dance fast
·Go to a party (And stay out past 10 o'clock)

SOPHOMORES

·Try out new found driving skills with parents car (Without them knowing of course)
·Cut a class
·Flirt with older guys/girls
·Use cheat sheet notes on competency tests

JUNIORS

·Park in the Senior section
·Throw tennis balls at the seniors
·Take No-Doz
·Be an A.F.S. student to El Salvador, join the communist forces and denounce capitalism

SENIORS

·Use a #3 pencil on the SAT
·Include a nude picture of yourself in your college application
·Go to the Tuesday night movies during finals
·Doctor your transcript to a 3.95 average, apply to Stanford, and get in ·Request a college roommate with psychological problems

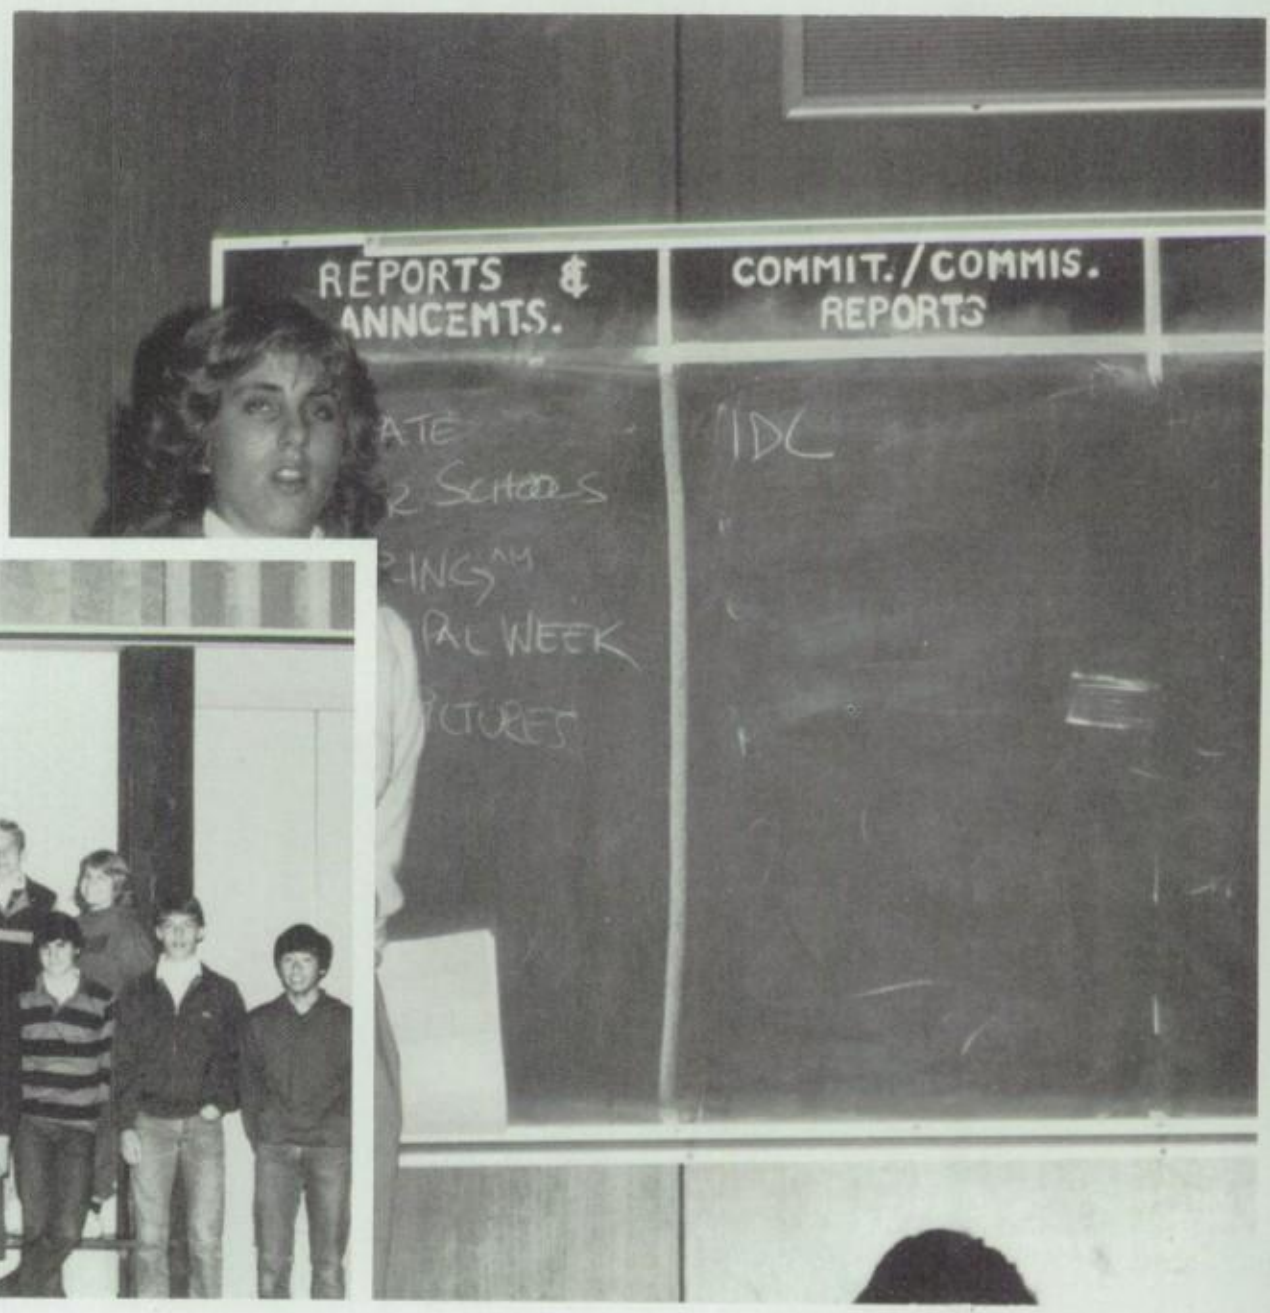
Tuesday mornings, earlier than one can imagine, a dedicated group of LHS students meet in the Executive Council Room. Even though chalk is hard to come by, the meetings still progress (even without Paul). School affairs and other vital issues are discussed and decisions made. The cleaning of the exec. room is one issue left unattended. The council has been successful in its endeavors (except for the expensive donuts) and ideas and dreams (during executive council) have become closer to reality.



Daring to Dream

Especially Epic

Once again, the Epic staff managed to print 10 issues of the newspaper despite broken typesetters, missing chartpacks, and undeveloped pictures (What really is going on in the darkroom M and B?). Even the never ending lunacies on the chalkboard (Smurfs, "Frankie", notes to JI, and S.B.) were not enough to stop the presses. Under the strict arm of the Journalism law, otherwise known as Mom G., the crazy, unpredictable, fearless Epic staff pulled it together for the 84-85 year. Of course there were the usual feuds and controversies (Davy Wavy and Nudie, the famous B.M. story), but the paper always made it to press with seconds to spare.

The Epic Staff

Around the world i

Lynbrook is proud to have had four new foreign exchange students again this year. All the students, including Thomas Wilrich and Ariane Reiss (Germany), Ikuyo Shigetomi (Japan), and Mari Mikkola (Finland), chose to stay in California since "It's the best in the United States." The new members of the American Student Body have each discovered a new way of life.

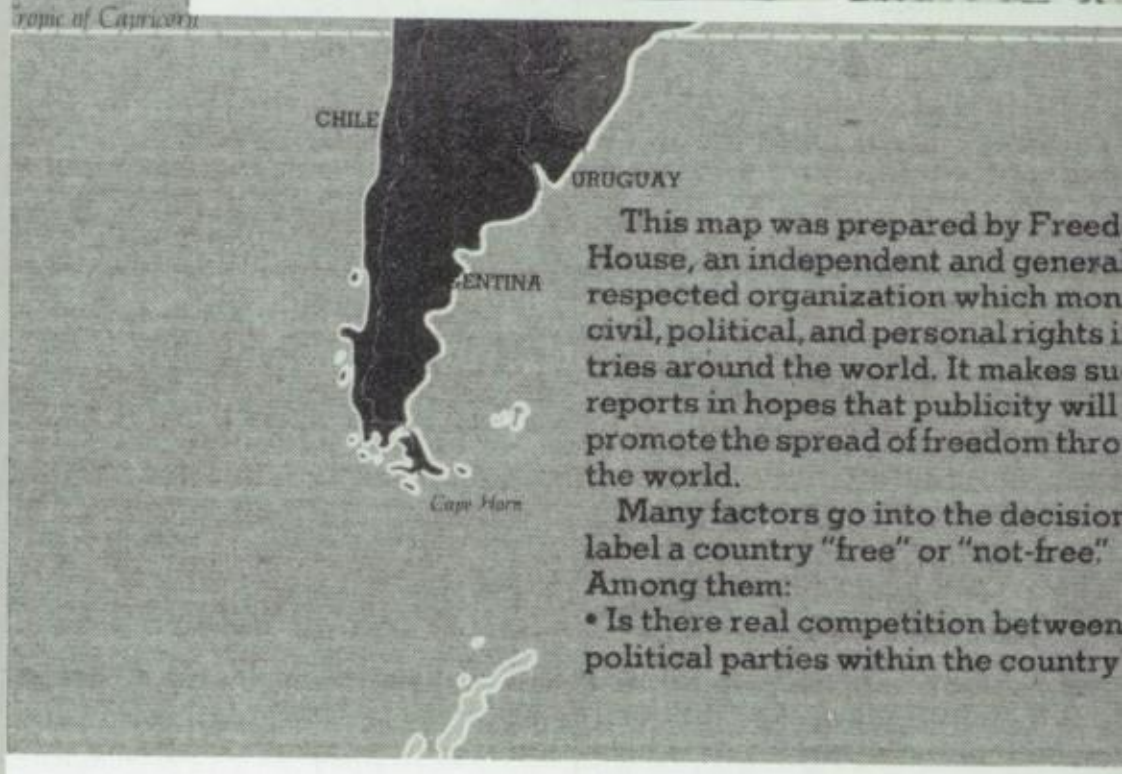
Education programs, as told by any of these four, are much different than those that they know in their homelands. As an example, in Germany, the teachers move (not the students) from class to class. While in Japan, the students must pass a test just to enter High school. How about that for a change?
These Students stay in the fast-paced Silicon Valley has proved to be a very exciting and rewarding challenge.
Thomas, Mari, Ikuyo, and Ariane— thanks for being with us!!

1-Thomas Wilrich-Germany

2-Mari Mikkola-Finland

3-Ikuyo Shigetomi-Japan

4-Ariane Reiss-Germany



This map was prepared by Freed
House, an independent and genera respected organization which mon civil, political, and personal rights i tries around the world. It makes su reports in hopes that publicity will promote the spread of freedom thro
the world.

Many factors go into the decisior label a country "free" or "not-free".
Among them:
• Is there real competition between political parties within the country

Does a citizen's vote mean anything?
s the nation's press independent?
s the court system independent?
s the nation free from foreign control?
Are citizens free to travel, choose own cupation, able to join religious or other ganizations of their choice?
What is the level of poverty or illiteracy thin the country?

CTION:

1. Freedom House says poverty or illitacy might affect a person's freedom to press an opinion or vote effectively.

Do you agree these factors should count in a measurement of freedom?

2. Do you agree with the above criteria for deciding whether a nation is free or not? If not, with which do you disagree and why?

3. Pick a nation labeled "not free" and explain why you think it is so labeled.

4. Can you name any nations you think are mis-labeled? Explain why you think each of the following is or is not correctly labeled: South Africa, Argentina, Jordan, Spain, Tunesia, Panama.

COMMIT./COMM
REPORTS

Springy ASB

The theme for this semester's exec council was "better late than never." Our quest was to be better organized and to have more fun. So, in teams lead by the A.S.B. officers, the potential for the group was incredible. They even got to some of the meetings on time if there were Winchell's Donuts awaiting them.

We had several new, exciting projects: a fashion show, discount cards, a school-wide birthday party, and fixing up the ever ruinous executive council room. Who are those guys on the wall anyway? What happened to our chairs? One added dimension to the room was the weekly agenda in colors, courtesy of Tom. (Yes, Anne finally got some chalk)

So with the help of a permanent advisor (knock on wood), Mrs. Gail Jensen, things were looking great for this group of characters. Another added bonus was Lynbrook's survival for another academic year. Happy Birthday Lynbrook, we love you!

STAFF 1985

Everyone at Lynbrook knew when "Yearbook" had a deadline. There were 20 baggy-eyed staffers following fearless Cheryl's lead with Jeff "Carry the box" Horner logging close behind. Into the famous room they entered speaking their first words, "Don't ask, Rode!" on that morning after. Each time the troop made it through though. The pressure and the endless nights kept them going. Why not? Once they had each section done, what better excuse for a party? Yet on those endless "Build your own band nights" (Right Sax. and Spaff.), partying wasn't the only thing on their minds. Along with the Zonkers, 3 Musketeers, luscious cakes and millions of calories, favorite tunes, hysterical laughter, and Perry's human bench press exhibition, continued the search for grease pencils and boo boo goo, the game of "hunt and peck but never seek" (Sound familiar Kathy?) and of course Turkeys until 12:30! So there we sat in Rm 17 reflecting on the night of no sleep until we jumped from our seats (with our permanent hall passes in hand!) off to "Get ads at Winchell's". "Rode, they turned us down again." But we always returned of course. Steven Spielberg kept us on our toes (Right Scott?) when he wasn't displaying our "Gorgeous-huh!-pictures!

So there we sat, if not sleeping, enjoying the free time and looking ahead to the next "Night before deadline night" at Cheryl's, our second home. That was how we did it! Looking forward and reflecting back at the "Outrageous" Valhalla '85 times.

From a Song in the

It was May 5, 1984. The 1984-85 spirit leader team had just been fully completed. Thirty-three new spirit leaders, comprised of seven different squads, joined together to keep school spirit alive and wild. The first chance to prove themselves (besides carwashes!) came at USA camp.

Football season soon began, and the varsity and JV spirit teams were finally allowed to show the Lynbrook student body what spirit was all about. It seemed that just as each squad and its members finally got it all to precision, the season suddenly ended. Next came basketball . . . and confusion. "What's my minor sport?" "What about the dance?" "Huh?" Eventually, as everyone found their time and place (space?), the season seemed to disappear, just as did football . . . But the spirit and the memories still remained all the way to the end (and past) the school year. The best way to sum up the LHS team's year was unknowingly supplied by USA: UNFORGETTABLE! Great job Vikes!

As football season started, the Valkyries were hard at work learning and perfecting half time routines. Football season seemed to fly by and before the girls knew it, competition season was right around the corner.

Entering a new division was one of the changes the girls had to adapt to. When competition season started the Valkyries began practicing a new surprise for all to see!! This year the members used props in their competition routine, which added a new dimension to their style. The Valkyries also decided to compete in the small dance team division. Both teams proved to be successful, by taking two first places at the California State Drill Team Competition, thus holding onto their state title. The Valkyries Flag team also had a surprise to show everyone! They demonstrated their versatility by using streamers along with flags in their competition routine.

This year the Valkyries earned (with the help of paper drives) the tropical island of Hawaii during February vacation. Each team performed exhibition and competition routines. They had just enough time to lay in the sun and tan their bodies.

All in all the Valkyries enjoyed a very successful season. Remember girls, don't forget PETER!!!!!!!

The band was a tremendous success this year. They dazzled everyone at the Tournament of Bands. In both the field show and the parade, the Lynbrook Band took first place. (Wow) This great victory was a definite high point of the season. The band had some rough times at the football games, with the coaches yelling at them to keep it down. (Football games are supposed to be quiet?). After a summer trip to Europe, the band came back to school and continued with all their fun. What a memorable year!!!

On a High Note

Jazz Band

Lynbrook's instrumental, jazz, and pep bands, once again, displayed tremendous musical talent throughout the year. Following a year of many high honors and an enjoyable trip to Vienna, Austria, this years musicians made new marks for themselves in '84-'85. Always keeping an audience entertained, Lynbrook's musical groups held on to their outstanding reputation with all their might. Being known as some of the finest musicians in the area is one thing these students can be very proud of!

Continued success followed Lynbrook's choirs again this year. We are priviledged to have one of the few jazz choirs in the district. The Jazz Express performed in a full house every concert. Concert Choir, the largest of the three was a hit also. Mrs. Lois Vidt directs all the choirs, including the Girls Choir, who are perfecting their tones in their second year of singing.

Clubs

No time to devote to a sport or organization? Well, this is your section. Clubs: a way of getting involved without having to commit too much. Clubs are a chance for you to show what you like while in the relaxed company of friends . . . and who said that there's not a club for you? We're sure that out of 24 clubs, ranging all the way from Science Fiction and Fantasy to Biking (where are you??) you'll find some interest in one or more of them. Possibly even in one of the selective honor societies or service organizations. Yes, we guarantee it. There's one for you here.

Twenty Years

We Owe it All to You

Since the day the weary freshman steps on campus, until the day the knowledgable senior receives his diploma, each Lynbrook student owes his education, guidance, instruction, and memories to the special people who dedicate their working hours behind closed classroom and office doors.

Since 1965, Lynbrook has gained tremendous recognition in areas such as academics, sports, and general achievement. Of course, all along the students have actually been "performing", but it is the faculty that is the support behind them each step of the way. Not only have these adults been supporting Vikes by sharing their knowledge, but they have been giving them hope as well as good reason to reach for the ultimate goal. As a result, many Lynbrook students have done just that.

Without the administrators, teachers, board members, instructional aides, custodial and cafeteria staffs, and the others who work on campus, Lynbrook never would have made it through so many successful and wonderful years.

Although it may not be said often enough, Lynbrook owes it all to these hard-working people for making these twenty years possible. Happy Birthday Lynbrook!

Paradise

The sun slowly sank into the soft surface of the ocean; and tonight the night is still, and still the night is warm.

The stars brightly shine in the sky, as we see the moon's reflection on the calm ripples of the ocean.

We can hear the crickets chirp as we can see the waves gently splash upon the rocks which are embedded in the white silky sand.

The ocean brings a crisp, chilly breeze which blows through the shore; So we cuddle up in a soft embrace, gazing into the sky, and listening to Mother Nature as our hearts beat in synchronicity.

Romantic nights such as this and sharing them only with you is the ultimate PARADISE!

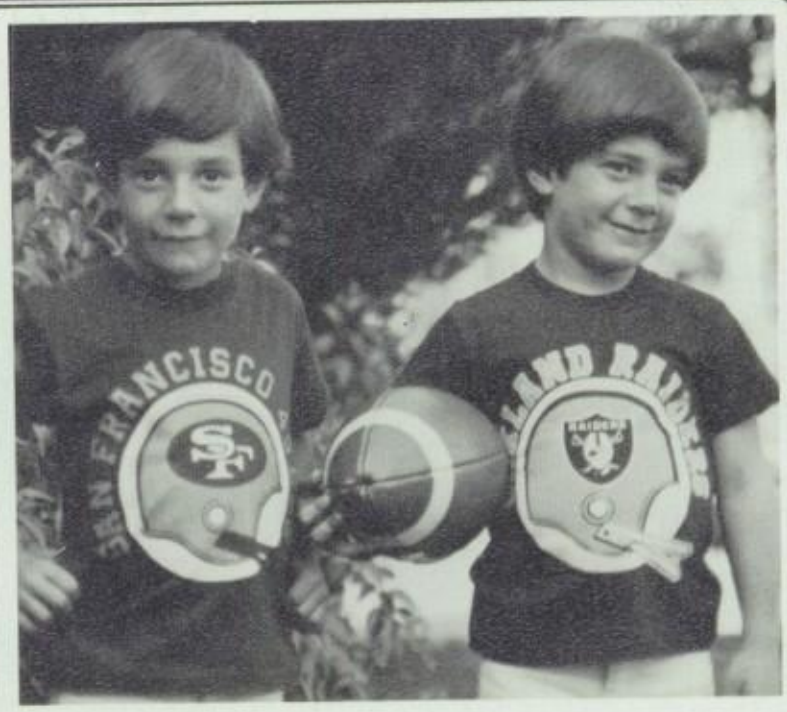
"Spirit of '68"

Dear Monica,
Love & Kisses
Mom & Dad



Good Luck
Montana Matt
& Plunkett Mike

As another school year at Lynbrook comes to an end, so must our celebration. But only temporarily. Because where one leaves off emerges the start of another—perhaps better than the last.

Although "celebration", at first glimpse, means throwing a party that weekend your parents left town, or maybe something more simple like baking a birthday cake for your best friend, including party hats and blow horns, maybe it also means just a tiny bit more. Throughout this 1984-85 school year we have celebrated such things as those first few memorable days at school, (and dispite complaints, Froshbusters, we'll live on forever) that eventful Homecoming week where excitement and good feelings were everywhere, that wonderful weekend after finals, and, of course, the celebration of Lynbrook High School's 20th anniversary!

"The memories of all the smiles and special times will stay with us and never disappear."

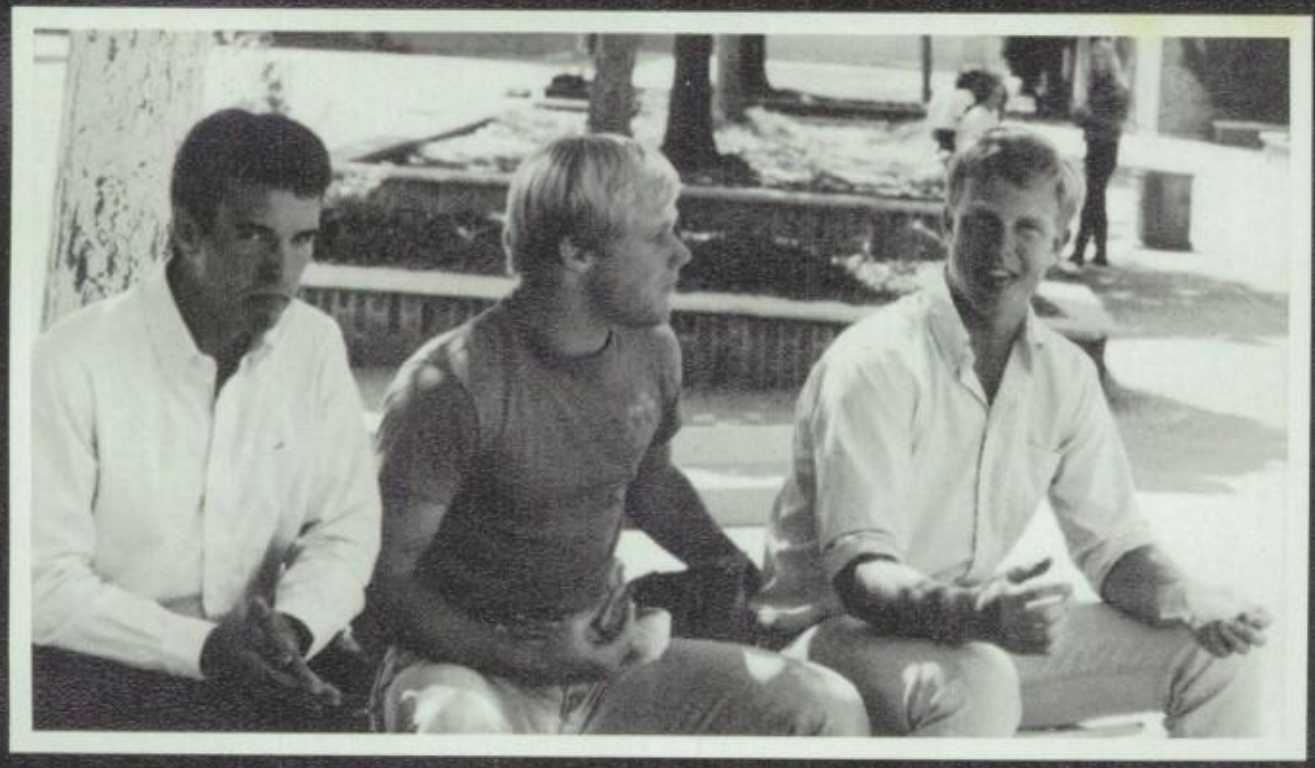
-Andrew Tawney

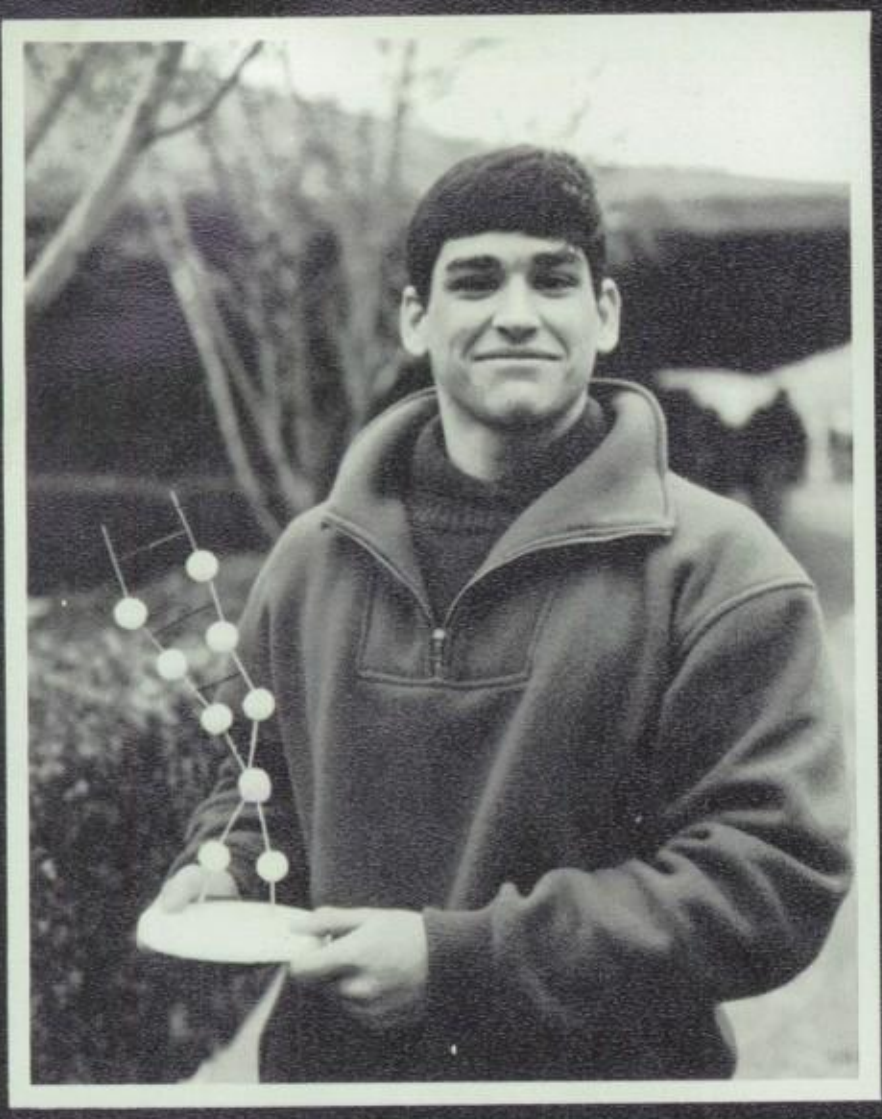
"Never shall I forget, the days which I spent with you."

-Ludwig van Beethoven

"We come together for brief, beautiful moments in time."

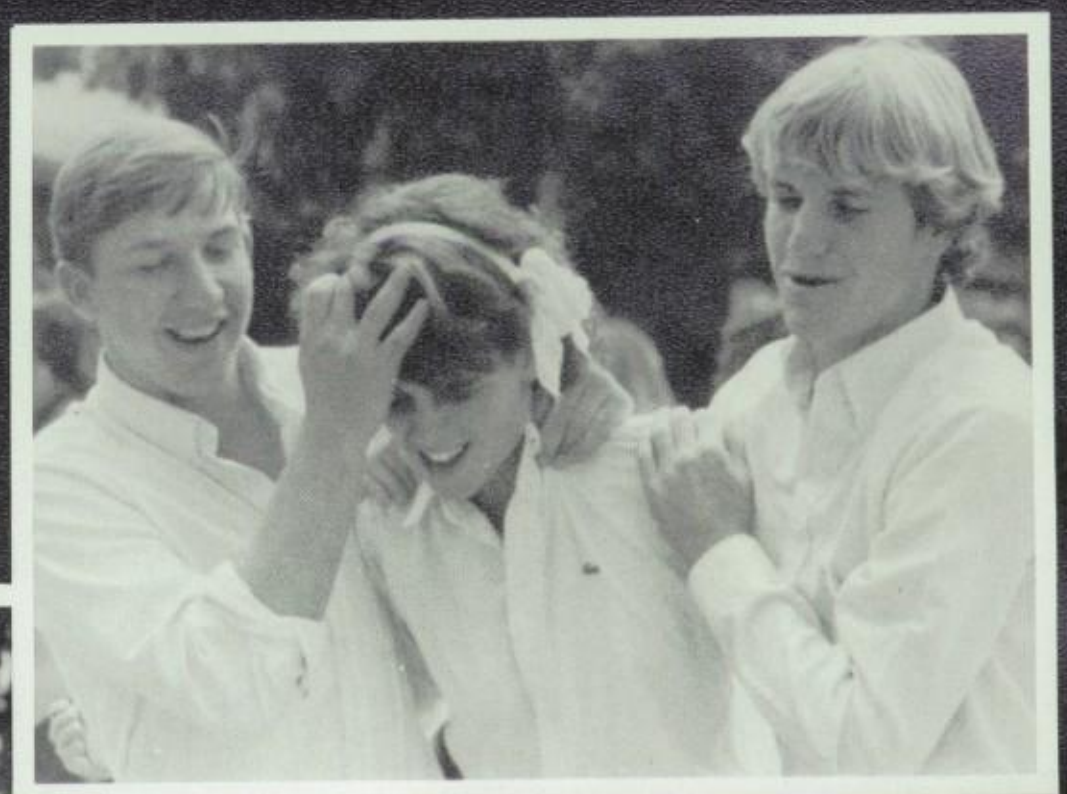
-Jane Caldwell

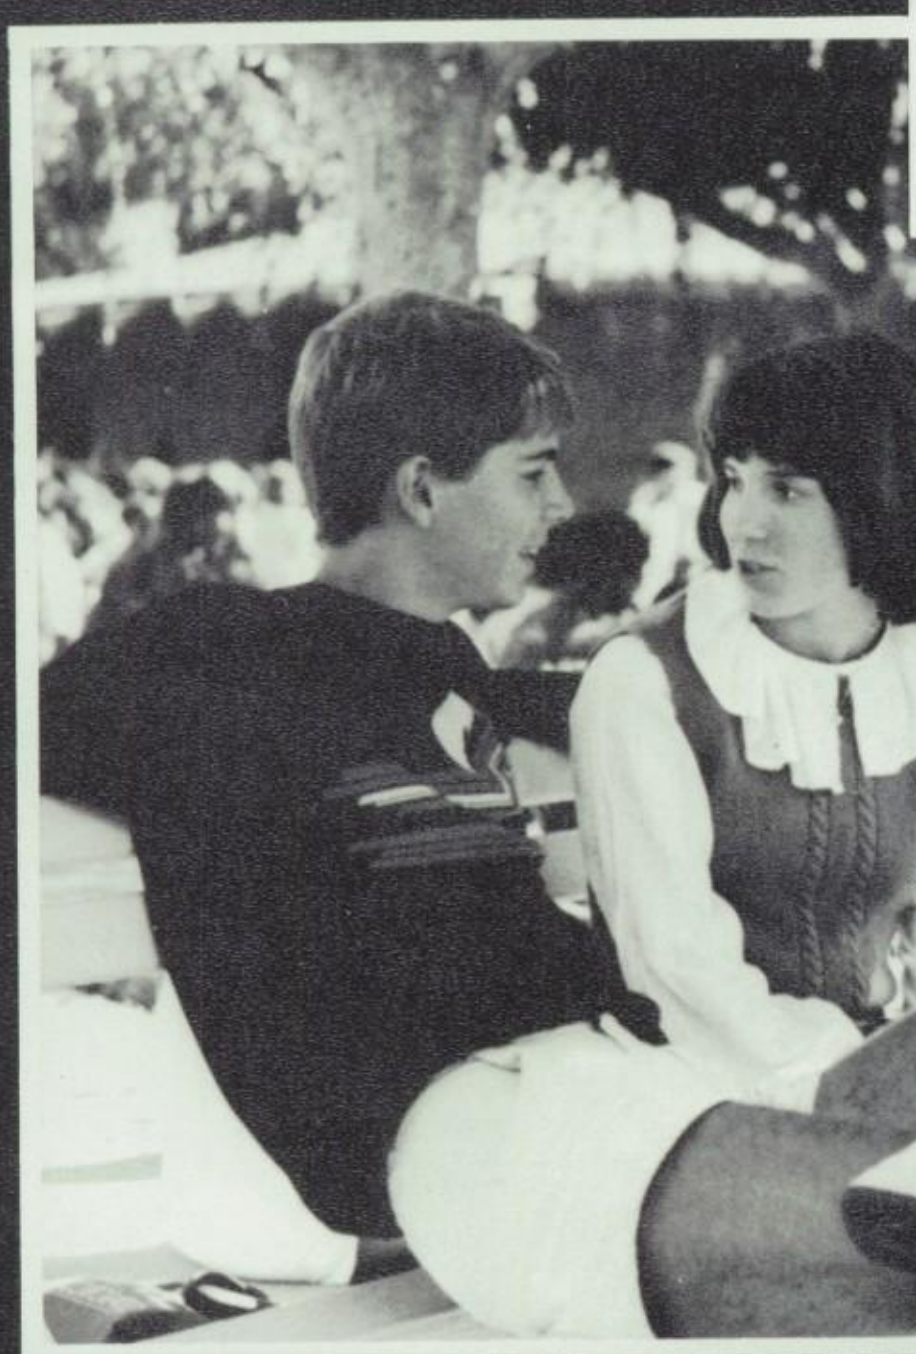




"Live in the present and make it so beautiful that it will be worth remembering."

-Ida Scott Taylor





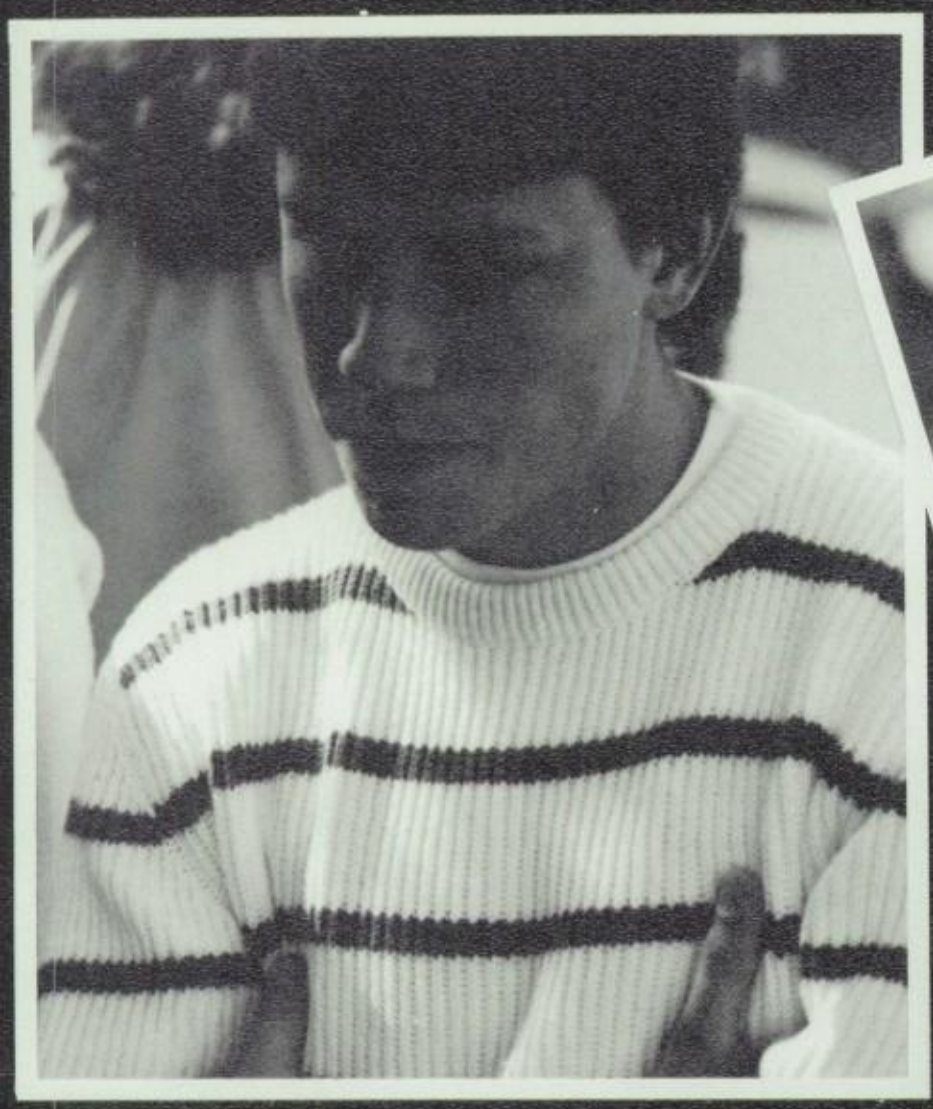
But for just this time, let's look beyond our own interpretation of "celebration". For with a sentimental approach comes the strong happiness we feel when we get to see our friends again and the terrible sadness we feel when we have to say good-bye to them again—perhaps forever this time.

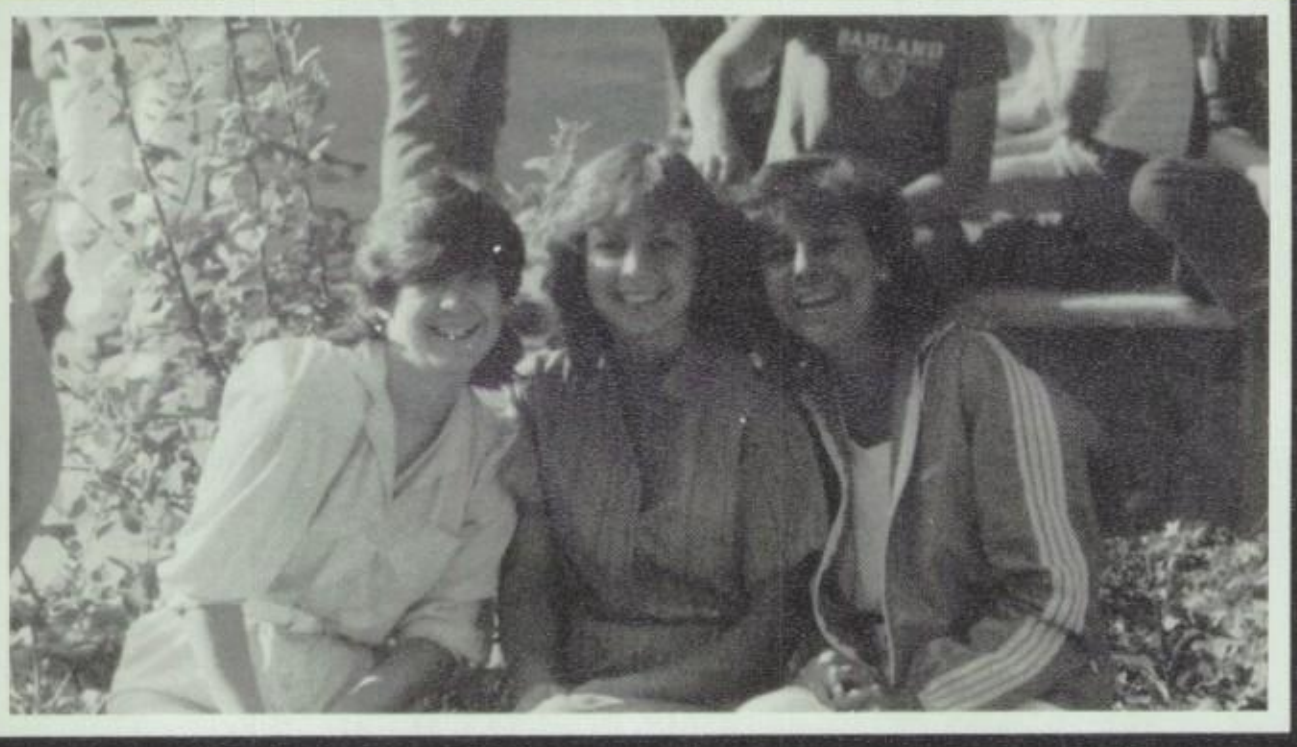
Through these years, we have come to realize the true meaning of friendship. We have come a long way considering we used to choose our friends by those who possessed the best Barbie doll clothes, or those who had the best back yards for a good game of cowboys and Indians. But by now, a friend has come to mean someone who stands by us faithfully, through the good times and the bad times. And let's face it, high school is an emotional rollercoaster, full of ups and downs. Yet, through our special friends who bring happiness to our lives, there comes a happy ending to our story.

So for all the many ways we have come to love our friends, it makes it that much harder to say good-bye. How many mornings we have heard that stupid alarm clock go off, praying to ourselves that this dreaded school year would end! Well, now it has. And suddenly, we want to reverse our dream, turn back time, and celebrate all over again, because come to think of it, it has all been beautiful. Realistically, we know it's impossible. So perhaps we should continue on our journey through life, searching for a new kind of "celebration".

"The memories we have are beautiful and thinking back on them fills my heart with joy."

-Debbie Avery

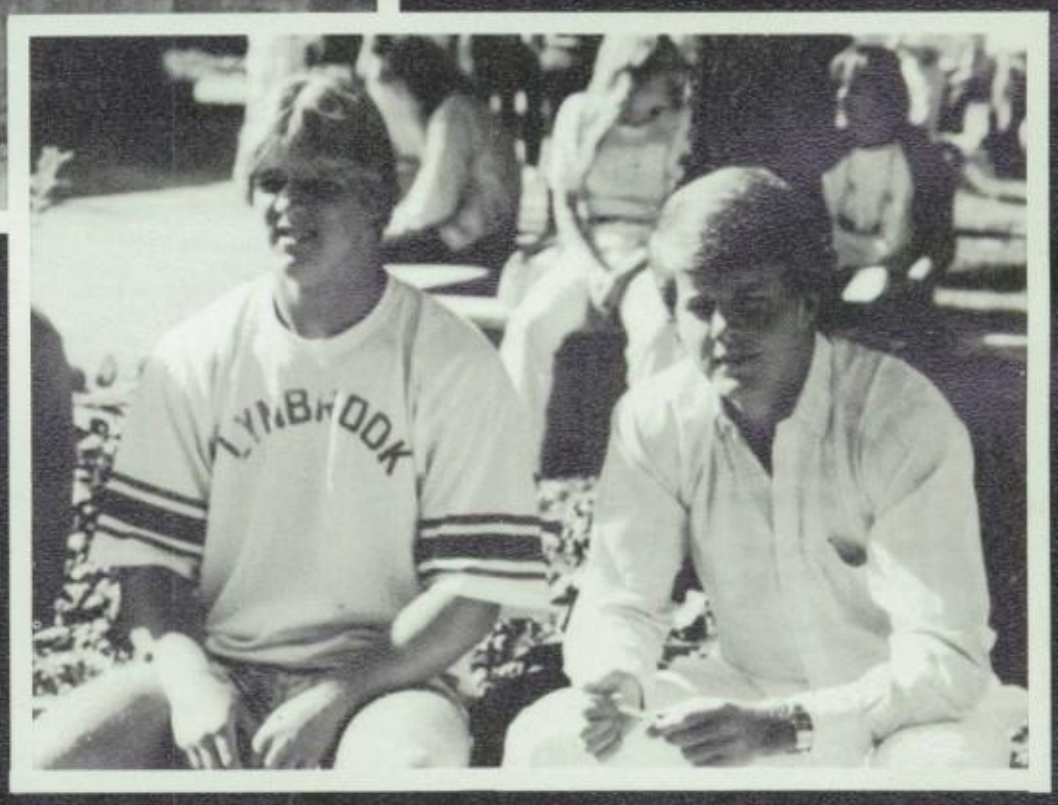


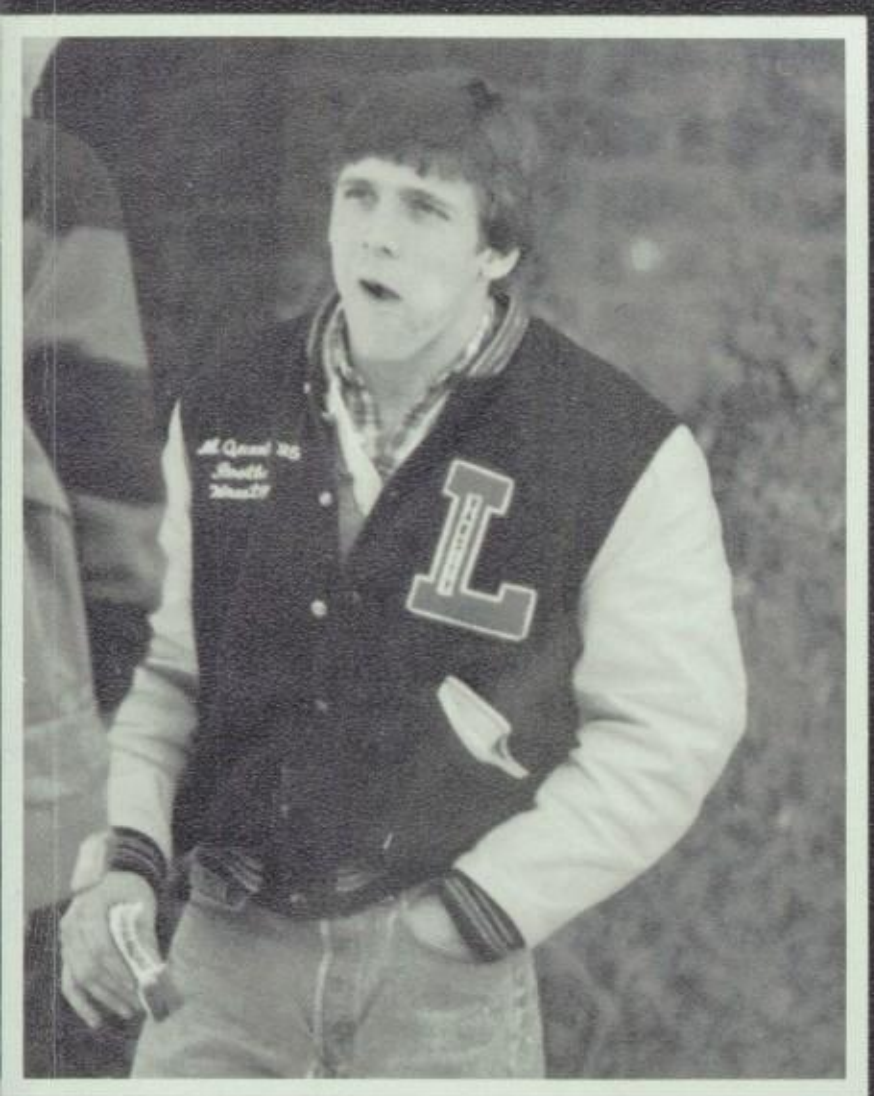


"I like to think that what we've learned from each other has helped to shape us into better people."

-Ann Decker

For now we are one more year aware, one more year mature, and one more year ready. Ready for whatever life brings us. But we know that because of our experiences here at Lynbrook, the educational instruction and the strong emotional bonds we have formed, we have all grown up. And we will therefore find reason to celebrate wherever we may go.





"I hope that you live the rest of your life in love and harmony."

-Donna Wayland

Only the future knows how long we will travel the same ways, certain only that our lives will be changed
because of our common experiences.
Let's enjoy the walk together and celebrate the person each of us brings to the journey and the friends we are becoming along the way.

-Nancy Ferrell
